Bennett Lists Goals in Ottawa Talks

$14,000 Cayuga Theft

Apparently Inside Job

The Tribal class destroyer HMCS Cayuga, senior ship in the RCN's Second Canadian Escort Squadron, is being detained in port at Esquimalt today as RCMP investigate the theft of $14,522 from the ship's strongbox.

Cayuga was to have sailed at 10 a.m., to lead the three other ships of the squadron in escorting HMCS Ontario on a training cruise for officer cadets.

The theft was reported to RCMP by the ship's captain, Cmdr. G. H. Davidson, shortly after 7 p.m. Saturday.

The money disappeared from a strongbox in the cabin of Lieut. A. K. Cameron, supply officer.

NOT FORCED

The box, fastened with a key, had not been forced, according to reports. It appeared to have been opened with a key, or else the lock was picked.

Lieut. Cameron went ashore at 4 p.m. Friday, to spend overnight leave at his home, 1226 Hampshire. He returned to the ship Saturday evening and went to his cabin to get a uniform to be dry cleaned.

He noticed the door to the strongbox, similar in appearance to a safe, was ajar. Opening the door, he found the cash was gone.

Ship's papers, also kept in the strongbox, had not been touched.

PUBLIC FUNDS

Lieut. Cameron reported to his commanding officer, and Cmdr. Davidson called RCMP. As the money is public funds, provided against the purchase of supplies in foreign ports, the responsibility for the investigation lies with the RCMP, although naval officials are also investigating.

Those in the ship were ordered to remain aboard, and those on shore leave notified to return immediately. Personnel of Cayuga numbers about 300 officers and men.

Naval spokesen said the amount of money was "about normal" for a ship ready to leave on a two week voyage.

Cayuga was to have accompanied Ontario and the other ships in the escort squadron as far as San Diego. The cruiser will proceed to Europe.

The navy said there were no definite suspects, but apparently it was an "inside job."

RCMP said they were working on the theory that the locks on the strongbox were picked.

Chou Rejects Terms For Formosa Parley

Red Chinese May Use Imprisoend Fliers As Bargaining Point; Chiang Forces Upset

BANDUNG, Indonesia (UP)—Communist China today rejected the American terms for a conference on the Formosan crisis and there were strong suggestions Peiping might use 11 imprisoned American fliers as a bargaining point.

Peiping radio announced the rejection and said the U.S. state department's answer to Premier Chou En-lai's bid to sit down and discuss Formosa "put forward a series of unreasonable prerequisites for such negotiations."

It listed these as the participation of Chiang Kai-shek, the call for an immediate cease-fire in the Formosa Strait, the immediate release of "all American spies" and the acceptance of a United Nations Security Council invitation to discuss the New Zealand proposal on the Formosan issue.

But at the same time, Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan said he thought Red China might release the 11 imprisoned American fliers if Peiping were convinced of the United States' sincerity to negotiate the Formosa crisis.

MAKES PROGRESS

Observers said Chou's reported willingness to discuss the release of the Americans was a strong indication the Communists hoped to use their imprisonment to win concessions on other points.

The flood of developments on the Formosan crisis made it more and more evident that the talks between the United States and China might not come off.

Nationalist officials on Taipei said flatly they would not sit down with the Chinese Communists on any terms. The United States said it would not talk unless the Nationalists were present. And Peiping rejected all American proposals.

Car Smash Kills Youth; Driver Held

NEW WESTMINSTER (BUP) —Two persons died during the week-end of injuries received in traffic accidents in the Fraser Valley.

Dead are Henry Victor Anderson, 19, of Haney, and Mark Mount, 73, of Pitt Meadows.

Anderson died early Sunday when the car in which he was riding crashed into the guard rail of a bridge near Abbotsford. A second youth, not immediately identified, was injured.

Police later charged the driver of the vehicle, Nelson McPherson, 26, of Port Moody, with manslaughter.

Mount died in the Royal Columbian Hospital Saturday of injuries received in a traffic accident Thursday near Haney. He suffered internal injuries in a two-car collision which injured two other persons.

Ontario Off For Europe

Sea training for 79 cadets attached to HMCS Venture, RCN officer-training school at Esquimalt, started at 10 a.m. today when the training cruiser HMCS Ontario left on a three-month voyage to the U.K. and Europe.

It is Ontario's second cruise of 1955. She completed her first with Venture cadets aboard last month, after nearly three months voyaging in South Pacific waters.

Three ships of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron are accompanying Ontario as far as San Diego. The frigates, HMC ships Jonquiere and Ste. Therese, left harbor Sunday morning, and the destroyer HMCS Athabaskan slipped at 9.30 a.m. today.

TO SHOW WORLD

Ike Plans Atom-Power 'Peace Ship'

NEW YORK (UP)—President Eisenhower today announced plans for United States construction of an atomic-powered merchant ship which will cruise the world to demonstrate peacetime use of atomic energy.

The new ship, which will not require refueling "for scores of thousands of miles," will carry to countless foreign ports the exhibits of practical application of the new atomic science and medicine, agriculture and power production.

The president made his disclosure in a speech prepared for delivery to The Associated Press lunch.

Mr. Eisenhower said specifications for the vessel were being developed by the Atomic Energy Commission and the maritime administration. The chief executive will ask congress for special construction funds in the near future, accompanying his request with a description of the ship.

Red Dust Whirlwind Kills Four

HARTSELLE, Ala. (AP)—"A whirlwind with red dust," the third tornado to hit this community in 23 years, left four dead, up to 25 hurt, and damages estimated at $750,000 Sunday.

The dead included a three-year-old boy and his sister and a 60-year-old couple.

Homeless residents of this battered north Alabama farming section met soon after the storm to begin plans for rebuilding their shattered homesteads.

A Red Cross official said 20 to 25 persons were injured. Civil defense officials said 40 houses were destroyed, 30 more damaged and two churches blown away.

Damage to buildings alone was placed at near $750,000. When the loss of livestock, crops and utilities is totaled that figure may go many thousands of dollars higher.

Sunshine, Snow For Vancouverites

VANCOUVER (CP)—Freakish weather that ran the gamut from warm sunshine to a snowstorm descended on Vancouver Sunday.

A snowfall of up to three inches was reported in suburban Burnaby where traffic was snarled on many hills. (See Victoria weather story Page 13.)

Okanagan Tot Drowns

VERNON (CP)—Death by drowning was the result of an inquest conducted here Saturday by Dr. J. E. Harvey, coroner, involving three-year-old Randy Michael Hill.

The boy fell into Okanagan Lake from a wharf near his home at Okanagan Landing. He was the son of RCAF Sgt. and Mrs. M. Hill, who moved here nine days before the accident.

A-Blast on Mock City Postponed One Day

High Winds Forced Delay in Triggering Of Major Explosion; Canadians on Hand

By KEN METHERAL

SURVIVAL CITY, Nev. (CP)—High winds over the Nevada Desert today forced postponement until Wednesday of the big atomic blast to be hurled at a simulated city.

The test may point the way to survival for thousands of Canadians.

That is the opinion of top officials of Canada's civil defense organization here as official observers of the open shot test which will also mark the first time Canadian servicemen have been subjected to an atomic explosion.

Six top civil defense chiefs, including Maj.-Gen. Frank Worthington of Ottawa, visited the test site Sunday and again today. They inspected a vast array of civilian and industrial targets that have been assembled on the Nevada desert to see how well they can withstand the effects of detonation expected to be equivalent to explosion of 40,000 tons of TNT.

Gen. Worthington and his party spent hours Sunday studying details of construction of civilian shelters, houses, power and gas lines and other installations set at distances varying from 4,700 feet to 15,000 feet from the blast centre.

"This test will provide the answers to many questions we must know," said Worthington as he made a thorough examination of a one-story frame house and a similar structure of precast concrete slabs—both of types occupied by Canadians from Halifax to Victoria.

The tri-service team, which will occupy the second closest manned trenches during the blast, rested today after an intensive three-day monitoring exercise over areas contaminated in previous tests.

CROUCH IN TRENCHES

Those in the forward trenches will have to crouch head-down for several seconds after the blast.

"This is the type of job we've been trained to do," said Don Newbury of Regina and Alida, Sask. Spr. S. R. Adams of Montreal and RCAF Cpl. George Stuart of Comox, B.C., agreed. "There isn't any danger because we've been trained to avoid it," said Adams.

So keen are the Canadians that they put in the six hours, without stopping for lunch, in a final sweep over the rocky, cactus-covered terrain in a simulated radiation detection test.

WOULDN'T TAKE LUNCH

"The men just wouldn't take a lunch break," said Maj. R. E. MacDonald of Sydney Mines, N.S. "They wanted to keep on working."

And it was work. Cpl. D. W. Newbury, 25, of Alida, Sask., and Regina, and RCN PO J. H. Threlfall, 42, of Esquimalt, B.C., who formed one forward detection squad, worked without respite wearing respirators and heavy protective clothing. They ended the day leg-weary and soaked in perspiration.

Profit-Free Gift For PGE Extension In B.C. Proposals

* * * * * *

WHAT PREMIER BENNETT WANTS:

In Ottawa today, on the eve of the preliminary Dominion-provincial fiscal conference, Premier Bennett disclosed B.C. policy on four major issues affecting the governments of Canada;

1. He wants Ottawa to share 50-50 with the provinces in a public investment program for highways, bridges and forest conservation (including a half share in B.C.'s $60,000,000 PGE extension.

2. He wants Ottawa to contribute 40 per cent of relief costs for employable people who cannot get Unemployment Insurance, with the province paying 40 and municipalities 20. (In Ottawa today, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons proposals for relief programs and special aid to unemployed would be discussed at Tuesday's conference. But, he added, he hoped the subject would not be treated as "a political football.")

3. He favors a secretariat of civil servants to make a continuing study of the Dominion-provincial problems to lay before a full-scale conference in the fall.

4. He says a new formula of income tax agreements should keep taxation uniform across Canada, but should be flexible to allow those provinces which so desire to impose their own income and corporation taxes.

* * * * * *

(From CP, BUP and Special Dispatches)

OTTAWA — British Columbia will propose a joint federal-provincial public investment policy at the conference of government heads opening Tuesday, B.C. Premier Bennett said today.

Besides this measure to stimulate employment, the premier told a press conference, his government will ask that the federal government share in the cost of taking care of able-bodied unemployed not receiving unemployment insurance.

He will propose a 40-40-20 split in costs among federal, provincial and municipal governments, and he said he hopes for positive action on it at this conference, called primarily to set an agenda for a later full-dress federal-provincial meeting.

"I think it can be done in two minutes," he said when a reporter asked if he thought such a decision could be reached in two days.

His government's joint investment policy, Mr. Bennett said, calls for a 50-50 federal-provincial division on the cost of such projects as highways, bridges and forest conservation.

In British Columbia's case, too, it would involve the federal government in a half share of the $60,000,000 cost of extending the province-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway southward and northeast to link Vancouver with the Peace River area.

'NOBODY WILL VOTE LIBERAL'

OTTAWA (BUP) — British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today that "Nobody, but nobody will vote Liberal in the next federal election."

Bennett was asked at a press conference to comment on the political situation in his province. He said "there's no Conservative party left and no Liberal party either."

"The CCF are the only opposition," he added.

He predicted the situation in British Columbia "will be reflected in the next federal voting."

He said he had no personal ambitions in the federal sphere.

B.C. Won't Cut Ottawa In on Profit

Under any such arrangement, he said, the province would expect to retain control of the road and any profits from its operation.

Administration of any other joint projects should be in provincial hands, he said.

Speaking of federal-provincial fiscal arrangements generally, he said there should be a new formula for the agreements under which the federal government now pays rental to nine provinces—all except Quebec—for the use of some provincial tax fields.

The formula should be designed to take care of:

1. The have-not provinces, "which confederation didn't deal too well with."

2. Those richer provinces who could get along by imposing their own income and corporation taxes but who are willing to share the fields with Ottawa.

3. Any province wishing to keep these tax fields for itself.

Asked if he would look for higher federal tax rental payments to British Columbia under a revision of the agreements, Mr. Bennett declined to comment.

'We are here in a spirit of good will," he said.

'Can't Sweep Job Problem Under Rug'

Discussing his proposal for a 40-40-20 share in the care of employable unemployed, Mr. Bennett said his government made this proposal to Ottawa last year, with a view to looking after the 1954-55 winter unemployed. It had been turned down.

"We do think the federal government should get into this field," he said. "In British Columbia, the province bears 80 per cent of the cost and the municipalities the other 20. We find it expensive, even though we are the only province with less unemployment than last year."

"The governments of Canada," he added, "cannot close their eyes to the unemployment situation and to the need of progressive developments. They can't sweep this problem underneath the rug."

He said any federal sharing of this cost should be in addition to payments from the unemployment insurance fund, to which employers, employees and the federal government contribute. Also, it should have no effect on the federal payments made to provinces in return for tax rental.

Wants Ottawa to Pay Full Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — Saskatchewan wants the federal government to assume the full cost of caring for able-bodied jobless not covered by unemployment insurance, Premier Douglas said today.

The CCF premier, interviewed after his arrival for Tuesday's federal - provincial conference, also said he hopes for federal participation in a widespread public investment program with the provinces.

Mr. Douglas said he hopes the conference will decide to have these and other problems—including low farm income and marketing of farm products — turned over to a permanent secretariat for the drafting of concrete plans in time for a full-dress federal provincial conference later this year.

Mr. Douglas said his suggestion for federal assumption of responsibility for the employable unemployed would be in line with a federal proposal made to the 1945 federal-provincial conference.

Ruling Hits N.Y. Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Share prices declined on a broad front in early dealings in the stock market today following the week-end announcement boosting margin requirements.

Some issues were down as much as $3 a share, but a few soon managed a slight recovery.

The federal reserve board late Friday announced that investors must now put up 70 per cent in cash for any stock they buy. That compares with the previous 60 per cent.

ROCKET TUGBOATS WILL TOW IT

Russian Radio-Controlled Tank To Send Lunar Tunes From Moon

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said today the Soviet Union is considering a plan to explore the moon with a tank remotely controlled by radio. It predicted lunar trips by human beings would follow in a year or two.

A broadcast said the tank, carried to the moon by rocket ship, would be fitted with powerful television equipment to transmit pictures of the lunar landscape back to the earth.

"Designing of the apparatus required at both ends is quite a feasible engineering job," the broadcast declared. "Moreover, the use of a tank as the first explorer of the moon will greatly simplify construction of the rocket ship. A tank can bear much greater acceleration and fluctuations in temperature and pressure than a human being.

Furthermore, a space ship carrying a tank does not have to be protected against collisions with meteorites nor does a tank have to be brought back to earth."

The broadcast said the 240,000-mile trip would be made in two stages. First, the space ship would be taken several hundred miles into the sky by rocket tugboats. Its own rocket engine would then be turned on by remote radio control to put it into an orbit around the earth.

Rockets would next be sent up to refuel the space ship for the trip the rest of the way to the moon.

"After such a flight it would be possible to consider sending a space ship with men on board," the broadcast said.

The Soviet Union said last week it has formed a team of top scientists to devise a man-made satellite which would circle the earth. The announcement said the satellite would take photographs of cloud and ice formations to help weather forecasting.

Optometrists Question Weekend's Eye Article

The Canadian Association of Optometrists today issued a statement disputing the article written in Weekend Magazine on April 2 by Jock Carroll, a staff writer, concerning his experience with optometrists in five Canadian cities.

Carroll claimed that, although five doctors had found he had perfect eyesight, 14 optometrists sold him glasses after testing him.

The CAO's reply to this, issued by Edward B. Higgings, general manager in Toronto, follows:

Optometry, like any other profession, at all times welcomes constructive criticism.

We have no desire to question the code of ethics which is considered acceptable by the editors of Weekend Magazine. What we are slightly more curious about is when, in an interview with these editors, we asked why the author had not seen fit to check the authenticity of his findings with boards of examiners and colleges of medicine and optometry in Canada, in a desire to be constructive, we were advised that this was not done because it was not their policy to check articles in advance with the groups concerned because the article might be changed. Can such an important article as this, on such a basis, be considered a factual and fair criticism of optometry?

Not Valid

The profession of optometry cannot accept as valid research the article by Jock Carroll in Weekend Magazine of April 2nd, (and carried in The Times as a supplement.) For while we agree that objective reporting is a recognized and accepted newspaper technique, it becomes less acceptable when bias is introduced to lead the readers to conclusions which are not in line with the facts. Obviously, he has carefully selected the material which suits the purpose of the article and then by the use of carefully chosen words and by stating certain facts and using only portions of interviews, Carroll has written an article whose tone and implications would obviously lead the reader to erroneous conclusions as to the high place occupied by optometry in our Dominion.

Carroll made a completely unjustified assumption that his own visual problem was a normal or average one, and then proceeded to have his eyes examined by a number of practitioners in the field of visual care. On the basis of the examination, plus symptoms of headaches which Carroll in his own words said did not exist after his first examination, plus a variety of occupations which he described, and which ranged from a pump salesman to an office worker, 14 practitioners prescribed glasses and 14 did not. In a borderline visual problem case, such as Carroll's is, symptoms and occupational needs have an important meaning to practitioners, in the final diagnosis and treatment of a case.

Marginal Case

Based on a study of a large proportion of Carroll's eye examinations, there is definite evidence that Carroll is a marginal case in the sense that the prescribing of glasses might or might not be of assistance to him. For seeing in the distance, Carroll has no visual problem. Not a single practitioner said he could not see clearly for distance. But for doing close work —and this is the distance at which Carroll said half of his work was done—there is more than a possibility that a small correction would give him more comfortable vision.

As verified by an indepnedent optical laboratory, with representatives of Weekend Magazine present, all the glasses which were prescribed for Carroll were found, on analysis, to be basically the same within a narrow range of clinical tolerances. This proves two things. One, that Carroll has a borderline, visual problem and, secondly, the 14 practitioners who did prescribe—at 14 different times and places—all prescribed basically the same glasses. This emphasizes the fact that a small error of refraction must be present.

Unacceptable

This does not necessarily imply that Carroll has to wear glasses, because his vision is a marginal one. Therefore, as his case is open to a difference of professional opinion, Carroll is unjustified in using his own personal case, as indeed any single case would be unjustified, as the basis for an unfair attack against members of the optometric profession. It would be equally invalid research for any reader to go to a number of physicians, describe imaginary symptoms, some away with a number of different types of prescriptions and treatment, and then condemn one segment of the physicians because of what they did or did not do. Such thinking is unacceptable to those who are competent to judge.

Let us remember this—Carroll has set himself up both as a judge and jury, but without the necessary scientific qualifications or background. This position becomes even more untenable when those with public responsibility through the press are willing to accept this procedure and present it as fact to more than three million readers.

Unjustly Condemned

The most charitable appraisal of Carroll's article would state that he had, in his enthusiasm for what he considered to be a newsworthy article, departed from what is surely fair criticism and, through the use of selected interviews and the omission of others, plus incomplete research, has as a result, unjustly condemned a professional group whose practitioners meet the visual needs of 70 per cent of the public.

The facts are simply these. Optometry is taught at universities and colleges in a five-year teaching program. Optometrists in Canada number 1,500 of a total 2,000 practitioners — both medical and non-medical — who have been adequately trained to meet and treat visual problems. All these facts can only refute, in the strongest possible manner, any inference that the public might draw from Carroll's article.

Weekend Statement

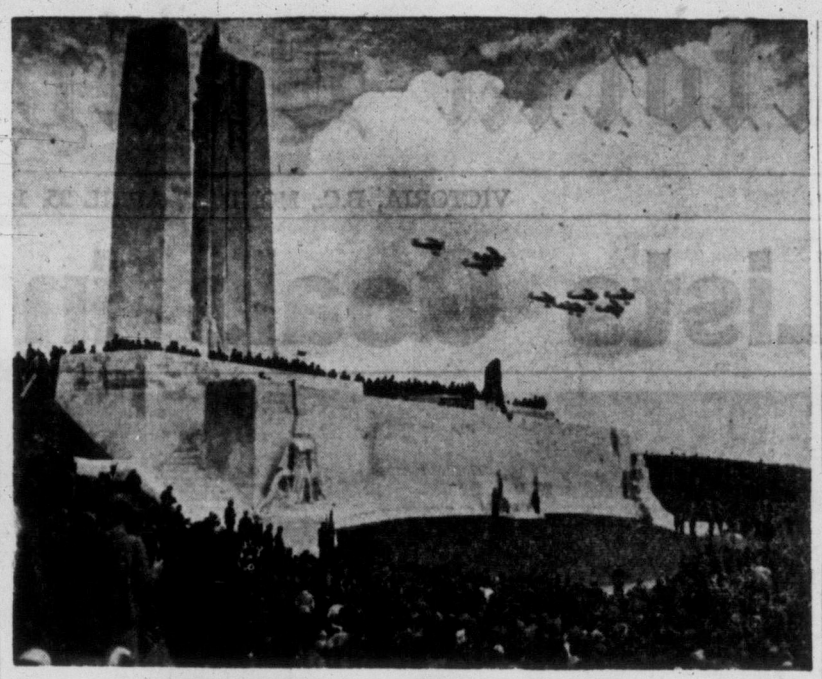
At the same time Glen Gilbert, editorial director of Weekend Magazine, issued the following comment on the magazine's reason for publishing the article:

The editors of Weekend Magazine decided to publish Jock Carroll's article because it was based on his personal experience and was in the public interest. They were not concerned with any differences which may or may not exist between two professional groups and held no brief for either optometrist or oculists. The fact remains — Carroll had his eyes examined by 28 professional men. Of these, 14, nine of whom were optometrists and five of whom were oculists, advised he did not require glasses; 14 of the 28, all optometrists, prescribed and dispensed glasses at an average price of $24.00.

It had been decided that Carroll should not identify himself as a newspaperman while researching the article; rather, he presented himself as an agent with a wholesale plumbing firm whose job kept him out of the office half the time and the rest spent in the office doing book work. This routine is identical with Carroll's work for Weekend Magazine.

To guard against any misunderstandings concerning what Carroll said to the professional men he visited or what was said to him during examinations, a tape recording was made of each interview.

Two Weekend editors met with Mr. Higgins and his associates after publication of the article and it was explained to them that at no time had Weekend considered checking the story with any group or association of optometrists prior to publication.



VIMY MEMORIAL . . . opening ceremony, 1936.

Vimy 'Dream' Pylon Sculptor Dies at 80

TORONTO (BUP) — Walter S. Allward, 80, the sculptor whose dream led to Canada's national war memorial on Vimy Ridge, died here Sunday.

Allward's $1,000,000 masterpiece at Vimy Ridge, the scene of the Canadian Corp's great victory in 1917, has been hailed as the noblest memorial in Europe. Set on the topmost line of the Ridge in shining stone, it shows the figure of a woman brooding over her two dead sons who are buried in the fields below.

The memorial, built in remembrance of the 60,000 Canadians who died in the First World War, was dedicated in 1936 by the Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales, at a ceremony attended by 6,000 Canadian ex-service men.

Allward once told friends he envisioned the memorial in a dream.

"I saw a great battlefield," he said. "I saw our men going up in thousands and being mowed down by the sickles of death—regiment after regiment. Suffering beyond endurance, I turned my eyes and found myself looking down an avenue of poplars. Suddenly, through this avenue, I saw thousands marching to the aid of our armies. They were the dead. They rose in masses and filed silently by and entered the fight to save the living. So vivid was this impression that when I awoke, it stayed with me for months. So I have tried to show in this monument to Canada's fallen what we owed them and will forever owe them."

Allward left many examples of his work across the nation. He designed the memorial to Baldwin and Lafontaine on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, and the national memorial to King Edward VIII; the Brantford memorial to Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone; the memorial to William Lyon Mackenzie King at Queen's Park in Toronto, and the South African war memorial, the Northwest Rebellion monument and the Governor Simcoe statue, all in the Queen's Park area here.

The sculptor, born in Toronto of Newfoundland parents, is survived by one son, Hugh L. Allward, a Toronto architect.

Bevan May Be Back in Fold In Time for May 26 Vote

LONDON (AP) — Aneurin Bevan, Labor party left-winger, was reported Sunday to have taken the final step to patch up his row with the party's moderate leadership.

Sunday newspapers say Bevan has applied for restoration to membership in the party's parliamentary delegation. It appeared Bevan would be quickly readmitted as a move to unify the party before the general election May 26. Bevan could then be expected to toe the mark, until the voting.

Transplanted A. Y. Jackson Says 'Life Begins at 72'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian artist A. Y. Jackson, surveying his new studio-home at nearby Manotick, mused that "life begins at 72."

Mr. Jackson, one of the original Group of Seven and painter of vigorous landscapes, made the move to Manotick after living and working for some 35 years in the old studio building in midtown Toronto, hard by what now is a busy subway route.

First thing he did after moving into his ultra-modern house was to paint the view from a 16-by-17-foot picture window in his studio.

"I painted it without stepping outside," he said.

WIDE TRAVELS

Heretofore the bachelor artist lived a somewhat nomadic life, going "anywhere for a painting." He has painted everywhere from the Far North to the Gaspe Peninsula.

His new home is a model with a modern kitchen. A huge fireplace in the studio living room has a mantel topped by a few personal items he brought from Toronto—a ship's model and some bric-a-brac. In his bedroom hangs a splendid portrait of the late Sir Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of insulin, who was a close friend.

Jackson was in the old Group of Seven with such artists as Arthur Lismer of Montreal, Lawren Harris of Vancouver, Fred Varley and Franz Johnston of Toronto.

Now disbanded, it has been succeeded by the Canadian Group of Painters, of which Jackson is president.

Jungle Search Set For Long-Lost Pair

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (Reuters) — Brian Fawcett, 49-year-old artist and author, left today for Brazil to search for his explorer father and elder brother who vanished in the jungles 30 years ago.

Lt.-Col. Percy Fawcett and his son Jack set out in 1905 to explore a remote area of Brazil's jungles in search of a "lost civilization." They have not been heard from since.

FOR CIVIL DEFENSE

Special Body May Assess Escape Routes

By KEN METHERAL

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP)—It was learned here today that the Canadian government is planning to appoint a technical committee that would inspect proposed civil defense escape routes proposed by cities. The committee would recommend for or against federal assistance on the basis of need for such escape routes and their suitability for evacuation purposes.

It is expected that a number of knotty problems, such as Vancouver's Marpole Bridge, will be the first assignments handed the committee.

Vancouver and British Columbia's Social Credit government have been seeking financial aid for replacement of the present bridge with the planned multi-million-dollar Oak Street Bridge on which the first start was made a week ago.

The ancient Marpole swing bridge linking Vancouver and the city's international airport on Lulu Island long has been a major traffic bottleneck. Following failure to win federal approval of the Oak Street project, the B.C. government announced it would build the new bridge and charge tolls until the cost is written off.

Lack of adequate evacuation routes in event of a nuclear attack is one of the major problems facing Vancouver defense organization.

B.C. FLIER PERISHES IN JET CRASH

HAMILTON, Ont. (BUP)—Air force investigators examined wreckage scattered over an 800-foot area today in an attempt to learn the cause of a Sunday crash that killed two airmen aboard a T-33 jet training plane five miles from Mount Hope air base.

The RCAF at St. Hubert, Que., where the T-33 was based, identified the victims as FO S. J. Allen, 29, the pilot, of Hanover, Ont., whose widow and three children live at Longueuil, Que., and his passenger, FO D. G. Carter, 29, of Vancouver, B.C., whose widow and one child live at St. Lambert, Que.

Riot Police Set to Invade Faroe Islands

THORSHAVEN, Faroe Islands (Reuters) — A shipload of 130 armed Danish riot police early today anchored off the tiny port of Klaksvik and prepared to attempt a landing on hostile shores.

The police were sent to subdue the rebellious population of Klaksvik, about 25 miles from here, and enforce the expulsion of their doctor. The villagers don't want to see the doctor go and have sworn to prevent the police from setting foot ashore by shooting it out with them, if necessary.

Althought the villagers blocked off the 100-yard entrance to the harbor with a derelict trawler, and are standing guard with shotguns and rifles, there likely won't be a showndown today. Today is Denmark's national day and the police aren't expected to violate the holiday.

DESCENDED FROM VIKINGS

The villagers of Klaksvik, descended from mighty Viking raiders who used these islands as a base 600 years ago, objected to government attempts to replace their local doctor, Olaf Halvorsen. The authorities want to oust him because he was fired two years ago after differences with the Danish Medical Association.

Dr. W. H. Gaddes, assistant professor of psychology at Victoria College, will start a six-week course in psychology at Room 10 at the college Tuesday night at 8.

Courses in photography and gardening are being offered in the YWCA, the former to be held each Tuesday at 8 p.m., and the gardening course each Monday at 7.30 p.m.

Both courses are for 10 weeks.

Saxony Vote Rebuffs Adenauer Opponents

Inconclusive Election in Key State Was Keyed to Rearming of Germany

HANOVER, Germany (UP)—The Coalition led by the anti-rearmament Socialists lost its ruling majority in inconclusive elections Sunday for the Lower Saxony State Legislature.

Both the Socialists, who remained the strongest single party, and the Christian Democrats of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer increased their strength at the expense of the extreme right and left and smaller splinter groups. But the voters failed to show any clear-cut sentiment and neither major party won enough seats with its traditional political allies to form a new state government.

The Socialists, who campaigned against rearmament won 59 seats and the Refugee party 18 for a total of 77 in the new 161-member legislature. In the 1951 state election they received a combined total of 86 out of 158 seats.

The Christian Democrats got 43, the Free Democrats 12 and the German party 20 for an overall total of 75 by Adenauer's national coalition.

The neo-Nazi German Reich party won six seats, the Communists two and the centre party one.

De Gaullists Lose

PARIS (UP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle's postwar political movement was the chief loser in provincial elections in France Sunday. The de Gaulists lost 79 seats, more than half of those they held in departmental general councils. The centre-right parties led by Premier Edgar Faure retained their commanding majority, but left-wing gains were slightly greater than those of the Faure coalition.

Raab Licks Reds

VIENNA, Austria (UP) — Austria's weak Communist Party suffered a crippling new defeat in municipal elections held Sunday in Soviet-occupied Lower Austria province. Chancellor Julius Raab's Conservative Party emerged as the clear winner, followed by the Austrian Socialist Party. Both major parties gained votes at the expense of the Reds.

Leftists Gain

TOKYO (AP)—Conservatives won a solid victory in Japan's prefectural assembly elections but left wing candidates also racked up surprising gains. Democrats, Liberals and independent Conservatives captured 1,870 of the 2,613 seats in Japan's 46 assemblies, the equivalent of provincial legislatures in Canada.

Leftists of various hues—including 10 Communists—captured 590 seats. That was an increase of 170 seats for these parties.

VIENNA, Austria (UP)—Envoys of the Western Big Three powers met today to prepare for a conference with Russia on an Austrian peace treaty next Monday.

Moscow has not given a reply to the Western proposal for convening a May 2 meeting of envoys but the Western envoys here went ahead with preliminary plans for such a session.

New Luxury Trains Streak Across Nation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two glistening trains pulled away from Vancouver Sunday to streak across Canada in history-making runs.

The Canadian National's "Super-Continental" and the Canadian Pacific's "The Canadian" left only a few hours after their west-bound counterparts set out from Montreal.

More than 1,000 persons were on hand when Chief Justice Gordon Sloan threw a switch to signal the departure of "The Canadian" at 8.30 p.m.

The CNR train was first away at 3.15 p.m. after pre-inaugural ceremonies were held at the depot Saturday.

The luxury trains will cut one night's travelling time on the 3,000-mile run.

When Prices Are Supported

CANADIANS ARE RIGHTLY alarmed by American restrictions on imported farmstuffs but in this international argument they do not enter the court with entirely clean hands. Canada, as Mr. Grant Dexter observes in The Winnipeg Free Press, also maintains and may well expand the same sort of import quota system already applied by its neighbor.

In both countries the pressure to curtail imports arises out of the existing price supports arrangements for farm products. The American and Canadian Governments have undertaken, when farm prices fall beyond a certain point, to buy the farmers' products and thus hold up the price. In the United States these arrangements are codified by detailed laws. In Canada their enforcement is left to the discretion of the Government.

The Canadian Agricultural Prices Support Act provides a general price guarantee to the farmer and at the moment the Government supports the price of butter, eggs and hogs. It can expand this protection to various other products and to fish.

When any government in those circumstances is compelled to buy up large quantities of farm products naturally it is opposed to imports of those things from a foreign country since they only increase its problem and its costs. That is why the American law says that import quotas can be enforced whenever the Government is accumulating a farm surplus at the taxpayer's expense.

The case of butter shows clearly that Canada will follow the American policy whenever price conditions seem to impel it. As Mr. Dexter writes from Ottawa, "the butter record shows what would happen. This record proves that, while the Canadian Government has been protesting, and most sincerely, about U.S. quotas and special tariffs in relation to price supports, it has not been behind hand in equipping itself with a full armoury of weapons to do the very thing it condemns in Washington."

Under the Exports and Imports Permits Act, the Government has taken power by order-in-council to control, through permit, the importation of any product under price support. This power has been used recently to stop imports of butter. The same action could be extended instantly by order-in-council to eggs or hogs or any other farm product whose price the Government decides to support.

At the moment the Government is being urged, in the support of cheese prices, to halt a trickle of cheese from New Zealand and the protectionists of Parliament already are in full cry. Whether the Government will yield to these pressures remains to be seen but there can be little doubt about its action if the imports of any farm product endangered the price support system. In principle anyway, our policy is no different from that of our neighbors.

Once a government agrees to support the price of anything and finds its hands full of some supported product it is almost compelled to restrict imports damaging to that policy. But once it restricts imports it may expect retaliation, in due time, from some foreign nation thus injured.

Probably the problems of trade thus created will not be solved by any strict logic or neat formula. It is to be hoped at least that Canada and the United States, whose joint trade is the largest between any two nations in the world, will enforce their farm laws with discretion and forebearance lest a relatively minor struggle of farm prices develop into a wider and more dangerous struggle of tariffs, to the damage of both nations. And certainly when we have installed the same principles in our law we should have some sympathy with the American Government when it struggles with an almost unmanageable farm surplus.

What Happens Next Time?

PREMIER BENNETT SAYS THE B.C. Power Commission made its own decision when it pulled out of negotiations to serve Powell River—a territory also sought by the B.C. Electric—and arranged to sell its Sechelt development to the private company.

Commission chairman Thomas Crosby says the commission members discussed the issue with cabinet ministers "on its merits" and though "not instructed to do any particular thing" found that these discussions "confirmed their thinking."

The Vancouver Sun, commenting editorially on the retreat from Powell River before either the chairman or the premier spoke publicly, said the cabinet threw the switch which short-circuited the power commission plans.

These statements, conflicting as they may seem, are not irreconcilable. Having confirmed its thinking through talks to the ministers the power commission could voice the decision by itself.

Quite apart from the Vancouver newspaper's charge, and its assertion that the power commission was told to back up and get out of the B.C. Electric's way, the "confirmed thinking" of the publicly-run utility is disturbing.

The B.C. Power Commission had made no secret of its hopes for the Powell River expansion. Unofficially its spokesmen had let it be known that they wanted the territory. The desire was natural enough. The B.C. Power Commission has been serving remoter areas, the B.C. Electric the apparently more lucrative, denser populations. The private company, it has been argued, enjoyed the cream of the business, the public agency the skim milk.

Powell River is obviously spreading out, creating a larger demand for power. Costly as may be the installations required to serve it, the market is there and growing.

By its decision the B.C. Power Commission has yielded the field. In this case at least it is contracting. The B.C. Electric is expanding.

Where does this process end?

When another territory invites competitive bids for substantial electrical service, will the B.C. Electric again expand? Will the "confirmed thinking" of the B.C. Power Commission persuade it to pull back?

South of the international border the policies of the Republican administration have created a climate highly favorable to private utilities. Has spring come, too, for their counterpart in British Columbia?

A Laurel for Seattle

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME Court has resumed hearing of cases arising from its ruling against segregation of Negroes in the school system. Several states which have either compulsory or permissive segregation are presenting arguments upholding their stands.

At the same time, Seattle's school system receives national prominence for an exactly opposite reason.

Educational authorities in the Sound City late last month received the Seattle Urban League's award "in recognition of outstanding service to the cause of democratic living in our community and the nation through its positive policy of selection and assignment of personnel on the basis of ability."

This means that the Seattle School District has integrated Negro and other non-white teachers into its staffs so smoothly and so efficiently that no racial ripple at all has occurred. While some of the Southern states are struggling with prejudices against admission of all children to their schools, our closest big-city neighbor has gone several steps further. It is using non-whites as teachers and extending to them the respect their callings deserve.

Seattle approached the problem cautiously about eight years ago. At that time some Negro appointments were made where Negro applicants had superior qualifications to others seeking posts. Their records have encouraged a good reception for those who followed.

In the first year or so of the experiment, the race of applicants was indicated. Now, says an official of the board, no one asks and no one cares. Candidates are certified because they are good teachers not because they belong to any particular race.

Thus Seattle puts into practice what the schools teach about interracial understanding and appreciation.

The cases on the United States Supreme Court docket indicate clearly that the segregation battle has not yet been won. The example of Seattle, on the other hand, unquestionably sets the pattern of the future.

Baiting the Hook

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

I HAVE before me a very rare old book. It's little, but it's full of all sorts of potency we don't seem to get any more. It is the Liquor Board's price list for Oct. 1, 1936. And I hope I am guilty of neither a breach of copyright nor of handing out free advertising if I quote you an item or two. For $2.75 you could get a bottle of double-distilled 16-year-old rye. That was really rye. The cheapest ryes were $1.80 (For 25 oz., you understand, and on a fair strength.) The better imported Scotches were $3.25. Proof rum was $3.15 (imported brands) and 30 overproof was $3.85. L.C.B. overproof was $3.50, but you could get an imperial gallon jug of L.C.B. overproof for $19.25.

Brock

WELL, a list like this will, if I spin it out, make you angry or sad or bored, and I don't wish to do any of these things. So I will simply end with two regrets.

First, in these old price lists you will find sparkling cider, which was a healthful and pleasant drink, and very useful for making cheap punches too. You will not find it in a modern list, and that is a great pity.

A second regret is this: on the cover of any L.C.B. price list you will find the instruction "Destroy previous Price Lists," and I can assure you, from my experience in the last ten minutes, that if you disregard this instruction you will regret it. For the sake of your peace of mind, the L.C.B. would hate to think of you living in the past. As we say in Japan, you can't put the crock back.

UNCRITICAL

A PSYCHIATRIST was saying the other day that "the kind of love a small child needs is a love that is completely uncritical and absolutely accepting. . ." And within certain sharp definitions this could be made quite a persuasive statement, though I would not be absolutely hypnotized by it until you shone quite a bright light into my eyes. There are times when I am tempted to think that a psychiatrist's ideas, his brain-children, are loved by him with a love that is completely uncritical and absolutely accepting. This is naughty of me, but it is not my fault. I was brought up badly.

My parents wanted me to be happy or wise. Or, if possible, both; though to be both at the same time is so subtle a game, it is almost too much even to grasp the rules, let alone to obey them . . . there is almost no equilibrium in this, the most delicate of all balancing acts. It sometimes seems to me, in my gloomier moments, that the child of wholly uncritical parents stands little chance of being either happy or wise. But never mind, let's look at it this way: maybe nobody else stands much chance either.

IN SORE STRAITS

IN all the talk about swimming from here to Port Angeles there is a marked tendency to overlook the fact that I swam the Juan de Fuca Strait myself many years ago. It is one thing for me to be modest about it, but quite another for other blokes to be modest on my behalf. I think the time has come to reveal the truth. Let us go back to the beginning which is this: Juan de Fuca's name wasn't Juan de Fuca at all, but Apostolos Valerianios. He was a Greek, born in Cephalonia. I got this out of the B.C. Coast Pilot, Vol. 1, p. 20. I read hardly any other book during the whole of my swim. On p. 29, by the way, you will read that Port Angeles is frequently used as a port of refuge, though the book fails to point out that on a stormy day swimmers can be seen scurrying towards it from the northward.

I WAS much helped in planning my swim by Captain Ebenezer Turnbuckle and Captain Florian Luff, known familiarly as Eb and Flo. They assured me the coast was well-lighted and the landmarks unmistakable, and this buoyed me up no little. They told me, too, that the cupola of the county courthouse at Port Angeles may be seen behaving in a conspicuous manner from some miles at sea, and that supplies of coal and water are obtainable, though probably not in the courthouse itself and certainly not in the cupola. I spent some days rehearsing this information and I have never forgotten it.

Before taking to the water I encased myself in mustard plasters and over these I strapped a great quantity of thermal cotton which, in contact with water, generates enormous heat. For energy I chewed coca leaf, as do the Indians of the Andes. A native of the Andes, if given enough coca leaf, could easily walk up Everest; in fact, it would be extremely hard to prevent him, or coax him down again once he got up. The only way to master him, really, would be to chew even more coca leaf than he did. And a very pretty struggle that would make.

WHERE was I? Oh yes, in the water. Well, it was a very uneventful voyage, but at least I did not fall in with card sharpers, or an adventuress, or people who wanted to make me play shuffleboard, deck quoits, and other ocean-going rituals. I didn't even meet any strangers who tried to look me up when the trip was over, on the mere strength of knowing my address, though I had forgotten to bring a false address, the first requisite for cruising. When the pilot came on board me off Port Angeles I was floating very low in the water, so I just rolled over and he very sportingly did not attempt to board me again. Everyone was very kind, really. I was at anchor for some hours in Port Angeles but wasn't charged a cent.

CHICKENS' LIVERS

Some time ago a member of the B.C. Legislature made a charge in the House that quite a lot of the chickens sold in B.C. had tuberculosis of the liver.

At that time I thought it somewhat of an exaggeration but decided to buy any chickens I desired undrawn so that I might see for myself. Sure enough the first chicken I cleaned had a peculiar looking liver which I took to Dr. Bruce the government patholigist who comfirmed what I feared i.e. tuberculosis of the liver. Yet the chicken was very fat and carried a grade A tag.

I am writing this letter to impress on other housewives the fact that one cannot judge poultry by looking at the outside or by the tag which they carry.

YOUTH, KNOWLEDGE AND DRUGS

Senator Nancy Hodges' 'concerned' enquiry relative to informative teaching in our schools of drug addiction, its cause and effect, cannot be under-rated.

Adolescent curiosities must not be touched off by insufficient knowledge—knowledge must be guarded about by realistic frontiers. There must be no accents of silence concerning the subject nor multiple veils of shadow cast over facts. Religious exhortations or taboos have an element of danger in their suggestion. There is only the "pathological" channel towards safe teaching which reveals the grievous sickness of these people towards whom we must award great pity along with stern and consistent treatment.

A universal fear for (not "of"!) the victims must be engendered. They must be regarded as Outsiders without being subjected to ostracism. The disease must be known as contagious in the most revolting sense, without spiritual isolation being prescribed or allowable. Our fear must be the mortal fear of an insidious loathsome enemy as we contemplate inoculating Youth against its horror. I have had these narcotic victims under my hospital care. I know their plight.

THE ENGAGEMENT IS NOT ANNOUNCED

The "love affair", so termed by writer and match-maker David Willock between Miss Canada and Uncle Sam, who is sponsored by U.S. Senator Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon, has occasioned considerable comment and opinions.

Members of the Victoria Assembly of the Native Sons of Canada, who are a considerable portion of the national guardianship of Miss Canada's wealth and happiness, gave careful study to the merits and disadvantages of this proposed international affair and resolved that:

We do appreciate the very lovely things the Senator has said about our Miss Canada. We agree with him. Yes, Canada has everything.

The suitor, Senator Neuberger's Uncle Samuel, we have known, seen and heard over a long period. However, we have examined him again. His ancestry is good, very good, but he was a troublesome child. When only thirteen he kicked his mother out of the house and went "on his own." However, he worked hard and everything he attempted hatched a golden egg. He was generous with his wealth. He became aware of a pretty little girl living next door and several times he unsuccessfully tried to kidnap her, but all he got were generous doses of buck-shot in his buttocks. From these incidents, we understand, came the expression "rump-sprung" used by the Senator's lovely but misinformed wife.

His wealth caused Sammy to discount the demands of the Future. He became very careless and his large estate suffered. His wood-lots and his mines became depleted; his over-cropped lands turned to dust-bowls. Yes, the old farm is pretty much run down. Uncle Sam is worried. He knows he has been a waster.

In his dilemma and search for new wealth Uncle Sam looks around. He learns that the little girl next door is now a glamourous, exciting, beautiful maiden who possesses King Solomon's mines. "Oh, what a gal; what a dowry!" whistles the crafty old wolf who has nothing to offer but a honeymoon in "Canerica" the dreamland of Senator Neuberger.

Are They Clearing Decks?

BY WALTER LIPPMANN, From Washington

SINCE the Soviet government announces its decisions but does not explain them, the motives and purposes of a change of position are usually mysterious and always suspect. We do not know why the Kremlin decided to do this year what it refused to do a year ago when the four Foreign Ministers met in Berlin—namely to agree to an Austrian treaty before there is a German settlement. We are left to guess. Where shall we begin? Assuming that the agreement reached in Moscow is what the Austrians believe it is, the question is whether the Soviet government has made a big concession. If it is giving up something substantial, then what is it expecting to get in return?

Lippmann

Now the concession is a big one. In agreeing to withdraw its troops from Eastern Austria, the Soviet Union gives up also its legal right, agreed to by the Allied and associated powers in the two peace treaties, to station troops in Hungary and Romania.

Under Article 22 of the Hungarian treaty and Article 21 of the Romanian "all Allied forces" must be "withdrawn," subject to the right of the Soviet Union to keep such Soviet armed forces on the territory of the two states "as it may need for the maintenance of the line of communications of the Soviet army with the Soviet zone of occupation in Austria."

TRIPLE EVACUATION

The evacuation of Austria carries with it an international treaty obligation to evacuate Hungary and Romania as well. The parties to these treaties are the Allied and associated powers, including India, and the obligation could not be circumvented by new bilateral Soviet-Romanian and Soviet-Hungarian pacts.

In coming to its agreement with Austria, the Soviet Union must surely have known what was involved, and that assurances will be asked about the withdrawal of the forces. We are entitled, therefore, to look upon the Soviet action, if it is implemented, as a big act of appeasement in Europe.

Hungary will for the first time have a frontier with non-Communist Europe, and Czechslovakia will have a much longer frontier. Vienna, which will be an unoccupied city, is made up of people of whom a very large number have family or other personal connections with the peoples of all the Danubian nations which once belonged to the Austro-Hungarian empire.

An iron curtain will, of course, still be there. But it will not be maintained by the salient forces of the Red Army itself. Moreover, once this large territory is evacuated by international agreement, it cannot be reoccupied except as an act of war.

CAUSES OF CONCESSIONS

The magnitude of the Soviet action must reflect, it seems to me, a big reappraisal of the European and of the world situation. Remembering that almost always great decisions by great powers are made not for one simple reason but for many complex reasons, we may ask ourselves what has happened in the past year which could, in the eyes of the Kremlin justify so big an act of appeasement, which could justify the taking of such big risks by the Soviet Union in the orbit of its satellites.

The two biggest developments of the year, which are relevant, are the ratification of the European agreements to rearm Germany and to admit her to NATO and, then, the growing danger of war breaking out in the area of the Formosa Strait. My guess is that the Austrian decision is related to both of these developments but that the trigger—so to speak—which set it off now is fear of war in East Asia.

I do not doubt, as the Soviet press has itself pointed out, that the Austrian agreement is intended as a model for the Germans to imitate. But I find it hard to believe that the Kremlin would be giving up the bird it has in its hand—namely the Danube Valley—for the sake of charming the two German birds which are still in the bush.

The effect in Germany was no doubt an important reason for the decision. But was it a sufficient reason? Ever since the Paris accords were ratified, the West Germans have been making it plain to all and sundry that they are not going to rearm in a hurry, that they will spend several years doing it, and that they wish to negotiate with the Soviet Union before they are rearmed.

BASE FOR NEGOTIATION

The German tide is running strongly toward making German rearmament and German membership in the Western military system negotiable with the Russians—and especially after Dr. Adenauer retires. So I am not convinced that the Kremlin is taking such political risks in Eastern Europe for the sole purpose of encouraging the Germans in Bonn to go where they are already starting to go.

It may be a wild guess, though I do not think it is, that the Kremlin has decided for appeasement in Europe in order to secure the Soviet rear in case of war in East Asia. There are some very silly and reckless men in Washington who think that the Soviet Union could and would stand by while we destroyed the Chinese war potential with "precise" atom bombs.

In the Kremlin the choice of abandoning China and becoming isolated on the one hand, of a general war on the other, must seem a deadly choice.

I venture to guess that we are witnessing once again the classic Russian strategical action—which is at all costs to avoid being involved at the same time in a war both in Europe and in East Asia. The threat of American deterrent power against the Soviet Union can in fact be exercised only from Europe—only, moreover, with the willing collaboration of the Western European democracies.

PROTECTING REAR

What could be more logical, what could be more characteristically Russian—whether Czarist or Communist—than to do a great act of appeasement in Europe in order to close the door to European intervention in case of an East Asian war? If the war can be limited to East Asia, the risks are still very great for every one. But for the Soviet Union they are not mortal risks.

With Europe out of it, American power cannot be decisive against the Soviet Union, and the risk of intervening in order to help China would not be exorbitant.

I have no way of knowing that my guess is correct. But if it is not, it is a remarkable coincidence that the Kremlin acted in Austria just as Peiping began to talk about war in Formosa and just as Washington got itself entangled in the offshore islands.

Even if I have guessed wrong about the reasoning of the Kremlin, it is still true objectively that a policy of Soviet appeasement in Europe—marked by a withdrawal of Red forces—makes it safer for the Soviet Union to intervene if war breaks out in East Asia.

GANG'S ALL HERE

The continued and widespread consumption of alcohol by homo sapiens is an amazing phenomenon. It seems as if we have always had almost as great a desire for alcohol as for food. It happens all over the world. It has happened since the beginning of time. The drink may be made from grain like barley or rice, from fruit, roots or, in fact, almost any vegetable matter. Wherever there's man, there's alcoholic drink.

A WOMAN'S OUTLOOK

By RUTH ENKE

The Night Light

HE came to them when he was nearly 10—a rough, tough little boy who could do things for himself, and didn't need a helping hand. He surveyed them with a look of hate and scorn. But, mercifully, the hardness was only on the surface. Underneath, he was a mass of fears.

Like a snarling, nervous puppy that's been kicked and hurt, they said, and watched him carefully.

They soon discovered that the wild stories of his former prowess were mostly empty boasting. Not lies, exactly, but a sort of whistling in the dark to keep his courage up, and help him forget that he'd been chucked out of his home, uncherished and unwanted.

Ruth

* * *

They discovered that the arithmetic test papers with the fancy marks that he brought home from school, weren't his at all. They belonged to brighter boys. He'd taken them from the waste-basket in the hope of passing them off as his own.

They saw him bring his bike out of the shed in the early dusk and then shrink back as a man approached, carrying a garden rake. He crouched there in the shadow of the shed until he saw that the terrifying stranger was none other than his foster-father. And then, in a sudden burst of confidence, he owned up and let himself be kidded lovingly about his funny fears.

They gave him a little room upstairs, next to the other children. It wasn't much of a room, but it was his very own with a shelf for the books he loved and a place to put his model plane.

They thought he'd be pleased with it. He wasn't. He was scared to death to sleep in it unless he had his door open and knew that there were always grownups in the house who'd help him if a "robber" came up the stairs.

If the older children in the family went out in the evening, he never slept till they came home. He wanted to be sure that they were there, with their doors open, too.

They'd been forewarned about the fears, so they gave him a night light in the socket above his bed. He could have it every night, they said, and it would be watching over him from dusk till dawn.

Each night, he put it on. And, each night, they listened to the restless tossing in the bed, the frequent trips to the bathroom, the sudden shouts in nightmares.

As the weeks went by, however, all this stopped. Only the light was put on regularly to keep away the frightening dark.

And then, one evening, in a friendly rough-house between bath and bed, the light was broken.

His foster-mother went upstairs to quell the riot and put in the extra bulb she'd bought "just in case".

"What's that for?" he said. "I'm too big to need a night light now."

"I'll put it in anyway," she said. "And then you can use it if you want it."

The night light's there still. He doesn't use it. He sleeps at night. Little by little, the fears are fading away.

* * *

In these days when our minds grow used to the enormity and horror of the H-bomb and the mushroom cloud, doing without a night light may seem a little thing.

But, to me, when I was told this story, it seemed like a very great step forward.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Diarrhoea

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Many persons are troubled about a diarrhoea, and they have reason to be troubled because it isn't wise for anyone to let a diarrhoea go unchecked or unstudied for months at a time. This is especially true if blood appears in the movements, and if there is much loss of weight, a little fever, and some weakness and a decided feeling of illness.

Alvarez

There are two main types of diarrhoea: one is due to some cause which can be found, such as an ulceration of the bowel or the presence of a parasite or a bad germ in the stool. In the other type, which is much more common, nothing can be found either in the bowel or in the stool. I would say that in nine out of 10 cases of diarrhoea the physician cannot find any definite cause.

The physician will always want to know whether a diarrhoea is transient, or comes in spells which do not last very long. He will be much more worried about a diarrhoea that has been present off and on for a year or two, and shows no signs of letting up. Occasionally it helps to learn that a tendency to diarrhoea runs in the patient's nervous family, or that the patient himself has always had a tendency to loose bowels, especially whenever he became excited or tense or emotionally upset.

DUE TO NERVOUSNESS

Recently, I discovered while making an analysis of the records of some 574 highly nervous or mildly psychotic (mentally upset) patients that 18 per cent of them had suffered from occasional spells of diarrhoea for which no cause could ever be found. Evidently, it was due to their nervousness. Usually, in these cases, the diarrhoea was transient. Often the person would have one or two large bowel movements and then would be all right again. On questioning the patient I would usually learn that on that day he had had a panic of fear or anxiety over something. In many cases it was a fear of going insane, like some of his relatives had done.

Always, when a patient with diarrhoea comes, I like to know just how it started and especially if it came while he was on a summer vacation, eating perhaps in a cheap restaurant where things were dirty. Or it may have come when the man was on a vacation in some tropical country where the health authorities do not guard the watersheds as they do in this country. I like to know how the diarrhoea started because, if it was due to a dysentery type of germ, the beginning may have been rather explosive with fever, much abdominal pain, and perhaps vomiting and prostration for a few days.

Then the acute storm quieted down. After days or weeks, the original germ that caused the trouble tends to die out so that even a good bacteriologist may be unable to isolate it and learn what it was.

Always in a chronic case of diarrhoea the stools should be studied to see if they contain amoebas, which are single-celled little organisms which eat into the membrane lining the large bowel. There they produce small ulcers and sometimes diarrhoea. Often they produce no symptoms and this fact must never be forgotten. Too often, when we physicians find amoebas, we jump to the conclusion that all the patient's nervous troubles are due to the parasites. Then we may treat the poor person for six months strenuously, wondering why he never gets any better. He did not get better because his illness was not due to the parasites. In many cases they are not causing even the occasional diarrhoea that the man has. Whenever I give one strong brief treatment for amoebiasis and the patient's diarrhoea is not immediately better, I am satisfied that it is not due to the amoebas.

Occasionally one sees a person with a diarrhoea which comes in spells and which is due to the eating of some food to which he is allergically sensitive. Always the person who has occasional transient diarrhoea should keep a record of the unusual foods eaten just before the diarrhoea started. Then, perhaps after four or five spells, when he looks over his record, he can see that some one food had been eaten before every one of the attacks. Naturally, then, this food should be given up to see if, with this self-denial, the diarrhoea goes.

The persons whom I worry about are likely to have a severe diarrhoea every day for weeks or months. They may have 15 or 20 movements a day, and they may pass some blood. They are likely to have some fever. On looking into their bowel with a lighted tube, I will see many ulcerations, and on X-raying the large bowel I will see that it has become shrunken and shortened and scarred-up. I will know then that I am dealing with what is called chronic ulcerative colitis. This is a serious disease that must be treated actively and quickly and expertly. One cannot let it ride.

In the cases of older persons a somewhat bloody diarrhoea can be due to a cancer of the bowel. Usually in these cases the person feels that in spite of many bloody movements, his rectum has not emptied.

'I AM A CANADIAN BABY' PEARSON TELLS AUDIENCE

TORONTO (BUP)—External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson took advantage of his 58th birthday Saturday to enter the "Canadian baby controversy" started by Citizenship and Immigration Minister John W. Pickersgill.

After 600 delegates to the Ontario Liberal Association rose and sang "Happy Birthday" to the External Affairs Minister, Pearson smiled broadly and said:

"Thank you, ladies and gentlemen. In case anyone is interested, I am a Canadian baby."

Finlayson to Demand National Convention

Rebel B.C Tories Accuse George Drew Of Wrecking Party; Claim 'Deal' Made

Next move in a campaign by rebel B.C. Tories to oust national leader George Drew will be taken in May at the Conservative Party's annual executive meeting.

This was decided by members of the provincial executive Saturday in a stormy session in Victoria's Empress Hotel.

During the executive session, provincial leader Deane Finlayson charged natonal leaders, including Mr. Drew, of wrecking the party provincially and federally."

Mr. Finlayson was asked to attend the national executive meeting, to demand a national convention, with the leadership of Drew the major issue.

CHALLENGE

The provincial Tories also challenged the newly-organized federal Conservative council in B.C. by announcing they will run candidates in both federal and provincial elections in B.C.

Their candidates will run in opposition to candidates of the Drew-supported federal council.

During Saturday's meeting, the executive endorsed, by a 40-2 vote, a brief charging national party leaders of making a "deal" with Social Credit.

Under the arrangement, they charged, Social Credit was to support Conservative candidates in the 1953 federal election in B.C., in return for Tory support in the provincial election.

DREW DENIAL

In Ottawa, Mr. Drew denied there was any "deal" with Social Credit.

"There's not the slightest foundation for it," he said, "the suggestion is absurd."

J. Leon Ladner, head of the Drew-sponsored federal group in B.C., said "we are not identified with any party by any kind of arrangement or understanding, but we welcome the support of members of any party, whether Liberal, Social Credit, CCF, or independent."

Mr. Finlayson, in a hard-hitting speech, said he had done his utmost to bring peace to party ranks in the province, "but we have come to a pitifully low ebb."

ALERTED COUNTRY

He said the rebel group in B.C. has "come to grips with realities, and alerted the rest of the country to the peril that faces the party."

"If we can get a national convention, you will find that the Conservative party will rise again, and take its rightful place in the life of Canada," Mr. Finlayson said.

The provincial leader said he is prepared to go to Ottawa in March to state the case for a single party organization in B.C. But, he said, the meeting was delayed six weeks by federal officials "because they knew we were hard up financially at the time, and thought by postponing the meeting we would go broke, and the situation would resolve itself."

"We got squared up, and remained in business, and we intend to remain in business," he said.

Pope Calls on Scientists To Teach Truth

Should Lead Men To Adoration of God

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope Sunday urged the world's scientists to become teachers of mankind in the splendors of nature in order to lead men to adoration of God.

"Woe to them who make use of falsely taught science to make men leave the right path," the Pope said. "They are likened to stones placed out of malice on the road of the human race. They are the obstacles on which men stumble in their search of truth."

The pontiff spoke at a plenary assembly of the pontificial Academy of Science. The academy opens a week of study today.

In his 3,000-word speech, the longest he has given since a grave collapse last December, the Pope traced the great progress of science in all fields in the last century, and described scientists as interpreters of creation.

NOBLE MISSION

"Your life, consecrated as it is to the study of natural phenomena," the Pope said, "enables you to observe every day more closely and to interpret the wonders which the Most High has inscribed on the reality of things. In very truth, the created world is a manifestation of the wisdom and goodness of God, for all things have received their existence from Him and reflect His grandeur.

"The mission confided to you, therefore, ranks among the most noble, for you should be, in a sense, the discoverers of the intentions of God. It pertains to you to interpret the book of nature, to describe its contents and to draw the consequences therefrom for the good of all.

"Become, you who interpret creation, teachers eager to reveal its beauty, its power and its perfection so that they may be enjoyed by others."

If his Dad took him up on that offer, Ted would soon find himself floundering in a sea of facts about family income management, succession duties, taxes, wills, trusts, business insurance and other related subjects!

You see, Ted's father is a typical life underwriter — a man who has not only been trained for his job, but keeps up-to-date by constant study. For the uses of life insurance are more extensive today than they used to be. And the men who represent companies in this business now advise you with increased skill.

Doing this calls for more than study. It takes real understanding of people's needs. And since each family's needs are different, the company representative offers valuable guidance in making plans to fit these needs — individually.

New Office Building in N.Y. Third Largest in the World

NEW YORK (UP) — The world's third largest office building will be constructed over Pennsylvania Railroad tracks in Manhattan.

William Zeckendorf, president of Webb & Knapp, giant real estate firm, announces the new $100,000,000 building will cover a two-block square area and have between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000 square feet of floor space.

Zeckendorf did not say how many storys the building would have, but it will extend east and west from Ninth to Tenth Avenues and north and south from West 31st to West 33rd Street.

The building is part of an overall plan now under study for the redevelopment of an area surrounding Pennsylvania Railroad Station. The area over which the building will be constructed is presently open.

Washington's Pentagon, with a floor space of 6,200,000 square feet, is currently the world's largest building. The 4,000,000-square foot Merchandise Mart in Chicago is second. The Empire State Building has a floor space of 2,000,000 square feet.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices generally were lower, reflecting declines on U.S. markets and reports that the United States and Argentina were pressing their grains on overseas markets.

Most prices dropped early in the trade as selling outweighed the limited commercial demand, particularly in rye where May hit a seasonal low. Flax showed the best resistance to the lower trend.

Lakehead prices for the top grades of Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged from Friday, except for No. 1 durums of IWA and domestic which advanced one-eighth cent.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Profit-Taking Reflects in Mine Section

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were mixed to slightly lower in active afternoon trading.

Industrials, which eased almost a point and a half on the 1 p.m. index, recovered a little in later trading. Base metals, after dropping in morning trade, also recovered. Golds showed little change and western oils were easier.

Losses ran to $2 among industrials while gains ranged to $1.50.

Canadian Westinghouse and Imperial Life dropped $2, Weston's 1½, and General Dynamics and International Paper $1. Molson's A and General Motors climbed 1½ and $1 respectively.

Profit-taking hit most speculative issues with Coulee, Gunnar, Headway, Lorado, Maneast and Pronto falling back.

Liberal Petroleum jumped 60 to $3.90 and Canadian Oil Lands 30 to $3.90 in a weak western oils group. Hollinger dropped ¼ and Kerr-Addison added ¼ among golds.

NEW YORK (AP)—The market rallied today after shaking off early selling pressures.

The market initially fell back on selling induced by higher margin requirements, a boost to 70 per cent from 60 per cent. Losses initially ran from one to around three points.

The rally got under way in several divisions — notably steels, motors, railroads, and atomic issues — and prices ranged from one to three points higher with some higher than that in special instances. Losses went to around a point.

Higher Canadian stocks included Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker, both ahead ¼. Lower were Dome Mines, International Nickel, McIntyre and Distillers Seagram, all down ⅛.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were irregular in active trading.

Consumer Debt Hits Record $1.9 Billion

OTTAWA (CP)—The amount of money Canadians owe for the things they buy on time rose to a record $1,963,000,000 at the end of 1954.

This is an increase of $103,000,000 in the consumer debt for the year, following a rise of $326,000,000 in 1953, a Bank of Canada survey shows.

Most of the 1954 increase resulted from heavier borrowings from banks, small loan companies and credit unions, though debts on the books of retail merchants increased.

In contrast, buying on the instalment plan through finance-company transactions declined. These transactions usually deal mostly with new and used automobiles.

The debt owed to banks, credit unions and small loan companies increased to a record $665,000,000 at the end of 1954, from $569,000,000 in 1953, up $96,000,000, following an increase of $109,000,000 in 1953.

Buying through charge accounts in retail stores rose by $10,000,000 in the year to a high of $503,000,000. The $10,000,000 rise compares with an increase of $37,000,000 in 1953.

However, total sales through the instalment plan dipped by $3,000,000 to $795,000,000 after a jump of $180,000,000 in 1953 to the high of $798,000,000.

Better Business Bureau for City To Be Examined

Victoria needs a better business bureau but one completely disassociated from the Chamber of Commerce, directors of the chamber were informed last week.

George F. Gregory, chairman of a special committee investigating the better business question, acknowledged the chamber had become involved in doing the job of a better business bureau simply because the public turned to the chamber for advice.

Queries come to the chamber respecting such matters as the worth of various charity drives, the business conduct of certain merchants, ethics of certain business concerns, and what is a fair price for certain commodities.

Mr. Gregory acknowledged the time required to handle such queries was a matter of increasing concern to the chamber's staff.

He said his committee felt a better business bureau would be a definite asset to the residents of Greater Victoria, but was agreed it was not the duty of the chamber to operate such a service. His committee, he said, intended to contact the Better Business Bureau of Canada to determine what it would cost to have that organiaztion establish a branch here.

Thatcher Takes Seat As Independent MP

OTTAWA (BUP) — Ross Thatcher, for 10 years the "bad boy" of the Socialist party, sat in a new political environment in the Commons today and waited for a chance to explain his reasons for resigning from the CCF.

Thatcher said he would speak in the Commons "as soon as I can get on," and wanted to give his former CCF colleagues a chance to refute his statement.

Budget debate would provide an ideal vehicle for Thatcher's explanation, because members are allowed wide latitude on the budget speeches. However, since Finance Minister Walter Harris will be busy with the federal-provincial conference this week, it is unlikely budget debate will resume before next week.

Thatcher said after his surprise return to the capital Sunday that he would take his new seat in the Commons today. For the rest of the session he will sit with the three other independents in the House.

When asked whether his resignation was prompted by Communist influence within CCF ranks, Thatcher said that was "pure conjecture. I certainly didn't tell anyone that." He admitted, however, that his differences were with radical elements of the party and not CCF leader M. J. Coldwell.

Thatcher, who is a wealthy hardware merchant, said he would retain his seat in parliament until the end of the session.

He made his surprise resignation at the opening of Friday's sitting of the House on a point of personal privilege.

LONDON (UP) — Her Majesty's government stepped into a labor dispute at Her Majesty's own house today.

A maid filed an official grievance charging she had been asked to move out of the room she had occupied for years in the palace.

The Civil Servants Union said it would take up the matter some time today with the ministry of labor.

The ministry represents the Crown in all palace labor matters.

Woman Sentenced to Hang For Murder of Husband

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP)—Mrs. Lena Thibodeau of Upper Seigas, N.B., a 26-year-old mother of five, was sentenced Saturday to be hanged June 29 for the murder last November of her husband.

A jury debated only 45 minutes in returning a guilty verdict and Chief Justice A. E. Michaud handed down the first death sentence in the history of Madawaska county.

Chief Justice Michaud told the jury he "concurred fully" with their verdict and would forward his own recommendation of clemency with that of the jury's to Governor-General Vincent Massey.

During the 11-day trial, some witnesses testified that Mrs. Thibodeau had been guilty of numerous infidelities during the last six years.

Joseph Charles Thibodeau, 33, died of shotgun wounds in his home Nov. 5.

"Show me the manner in which a nation cares for its dead, and I will measure with mathematical exactness the tender mercies of its people, their respect for the laws of the land and their loyalty to high ideals"—

Rocks To Lose Goalie?

Johnston May Have Fractured Thumb

The week-end news was both good and bad for the Victoria Shamrocks as the start of the Intercity Lacrosse League season rolled ominously closer.

On the bright side was the arrival of Lou Landess, a day behind schedule, but an arrival that was heartily welcomed by Shamrocks.

Landess had his transfer from New Westminster to Victoria approved by the league commission Friday and the speedy, dangerous scorer will work out with his new teammates for the first time tonight at Memorial Arena at 7.

But taking some of the joy out of the new acquisition was the possibility that goalie Geordy Johnston may have a broken thumb.

Johnston was injured at a practice Friday night when he caught a bullet shot from Tommy Druce flush on his left thumb.

Johnston was scheduled to have X-rays taken today to determine if the thumb is fractured. He may be out of action for two or three weeks.

MORE STRENGTH

Meanwhile, the ambitious Nanaimo IWA Timbermen continued their wholesale rebuilding program, announcing the arrival in Nanaimo of three more players.

Foremost in the Nanaimo news was the signing of big Bob Raffle, who has come out of retirement to help the Nanaimo club in the Mann Cup aspirations.

A hefty 200-pounder, Raffle is a former league rookie award winner, and scored 40 goals in his last season with New Westminster before going into temporary retirement.

A further boost to Nanaimo stock came when John and Bob Lumley arrived in the Hub city over the week-end. The brothers arrived without announcement and both made it clear that they realized they would have to hustle to make the team this year.

Chisox Hit High, Low; Pirates Finally Win

By The Associated Press

How high is up? How low is down? Ask Chicago White Sox. Manager Marty Marion's hearty crew climbed the highest mountain and probed the deepest sea during the week-end.

White Sox zoomed into outer space Saturday to humble Kansas City 29-6 and tie a modern record.

Then Sunday they absorbed a 5-0 shutout from the same Kansas City's A's, Alex Kellner applying the whitewash.

It's no wonder both leagues have an open date today. They need time to catch their breath, as well as travel, before the first intersectional series open Tuesday.

EVENTFUL DAY

Just take a look at some of the other things that happened Sunday:

1. Pittsburgh finally won its first game, drubbing Philadelphia 6-1. The team had lost eight in a row and one more defeat would have tied the modern record for most defeats at the start of a season set by Brooklyn at nine in 1918. The Sunday curfew turned the second game into a suspended contest with Phillies leading 2-0 in the eighth.

2. The New York Giants scored six runs in the 10th inning but barely managed to hold the fort as Brooklyn bounced back with five runs in an 11-10 thriller.

3. Willard Nixon, the old Yankee killer, beat New York Yankees for the sixth straight time, allowing only two singles in a 1-0 Boston Red Sox victory.

4. Sad Sam Jones, always a sore-armed disappointment at Cleveland, pitched a two-hitter against Cincinnati for a 2-1 victory, his second of 1955 for Chicago Cubs. A scheduled second game was rained out in the third inning.

5. Saul Rogovin, another sore-armed pitcher who was shunted to the minors last year, went the route for Baltimore to top Washington, 2-1, in 10 innings of the first game. Washington took the second, 5-2.

6. Rookie Frank Lary of Detroit found his first big league victims in Cleveland Indians, who won 111 games last season. Lary allowed eight hits while Tigers hung a first defeat on Herb Score, Indians' rookie hot-shot, 6-4.

Kellner allowed only five singles. The husky lefthander became the first Kansas City pitcher to go the route this season in a game watched by 19,446 fans, who braved the double threat of bad weather and another deluge of White Sox runs.

WEBSTER RECEIVES RUGBY AWARD

Gary Webster, clever Oak Bay Wanderer scrum-half and a consistent choice on city rep rugby teams, was honored by his Wanderer teammates Friday night.

Webster was voted this year's winner of the Johnny Shepherd trophy, awarded each year to the Wanderer chosen for ability, sportsmanship and loyalty to his team. Last year's winner was Ron Hurley. The trophy was presented to Webster at the team's annual wind-up party.

Ron McConnan was elected team president, Hugh Farquhar was named vice-president and Tomy Vary was elected secretary - treasurer. Dick Ellis and Dick Bayne were returned as coach and manager, respectively.

Ferguson Runs Third

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Rich Ferguson, Toronto distance runner for the University of Iowa, missed out on Saturday on his bid for a third straight victory in the 3,000-metre steeplechase at the Kansas relays.

Ferguson ran third to Kansas freshman Bob Nicholson who won in 9:51.7 and Dick Wilson, also of Kansas.

Lee Steil, Mrs. Smith Take Empress Titles

Lee Steil and Mrs. O. W. Smith, both from Seattle, are the 1955 Empress golf champions.

Steil defeated Frank Shafer of Salem, Oregon, 3 and 1, in the men's finals Saturday while Mrs. Smith, the tournament medalist, won from Mrs. J. D. Munro of Victoria Club 5 and 4.

For Steil it was his second Empress victory, the first coming in 1937. Two down at the eighth, Steil won the ninth and and 10th to square the match and went ahead for the first time on 13. He won the 15th in a regulation four and closed out the match with a par five to Shafer's six on 17.

Mrs. Smith, held on even terms for the first five holes, won six successive holes to go four up by the 11th. Mrs. Munro rallied to win the 12th, but Mrs. Smith halved 13 and closed out the match on 14.

The Victoria Golf Club team of Mrs. Munro, Mrs. S. Maddocks, Mrs. V. S. Godfrey and Mrs. A. L. Pidgeon captured the inter-club team match.

Men's inter-city club honors went to Capilano of Vancouver while the inter-district Matson trophy championship was won by Portland's unit of C. W. Coffen, Shafer, Bob Dwyer and Dr. A. D. Inches.

Marlboros Square Memorial Cup Final

REGINA (CP) — Toronto Marlboros, after a shaky start in the Memorial Cup hockey final, came back to what coach Turk Broda said was close to their regular form Saturday night to defeat Regina Pats, 5-2, and deadlock the best-of-seven series at one game each.

The third game is tonight.

Marlboros were a different team from the one which received a 3-1 setback in the series opener Thursday night. They smashed through the Regina defense, keeping the puck deep in the Regina corners from where it was centred out for repeated shots at goalie Joe Selinger.

Selinger made 31 stops, compared with only 10 for Johnny Albani of Marlboros..

Four of the Toronto goals were scored when Regina was short a man after minor penalties, a factor coach Murray Armstrong blamed for the Regina defeat.

Mike Nykoluk scored twice for Toronto, Bob Pulford, Glen Cressman and Gerry James netting singles. Danny Wong and Elmer Schwartz counted for Regina.

Dutchmen Take Lead For Allan Cup

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, sparked by forward Jack McKenzie's three goals, defeated Fort William Beavers 6-2 Saturday night to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Allan Cup final. Fourth game of the series will be played here Tuesday night.

The Dutchmen, held to a scoreless tie in the first period, mounted a blistering attack in the second to take a 4-1 lead and coasted the rest of the way for the win. They out-shot the Beavers 48-35.

Bud Kemp, George Scholes and Jim Logan each added a goal for the Dutchmen. Alex and John Irving scored for the Beavers.

Only four minor penalties, two to each team, were called during the game, played at near-summer temperatures. Several of the 7,344 fans were in shirt-sleeves.

Morrison, McColl Meet In Times Island Final

Match-Play Golf Playoff Scheduled for Colwood Club

By BILL WALKER

Form, wind and weather took their toll at Victoria Golf Club Sunday in the semifinals of the Daily Times Island Match Play Open Golf Championships.

As a result, Hugh Morrison of Victoria Club and Bill McColl of Colwood Club will meet over 36 holes at Royal Colwood next Sunday in the finals.

Morrison, shooting par golf, except for one ball out of bounds, defeated Colwood professional Bill Court, 8 and 6, while McColl turned aside the bid of 53-year-old Harold Lineham, 8 and 7, both matches being decided over a scheduled 36 holes.

In the "B" championship, George Straith defeated Gary Shephard, 3 and 2, and Mickey Bartkow edged Bill Newcombe by the same score. They will also meet over 36 holes with the Hugh Francis Trophy the winners' award.

Morrison was superb in his victory over Court, the match being played in extremely difficult conditions. A high wind, reaching near-gale proportions at times, made play treacherous. But just the same Morrison was at his peak and, for the 30 holes completed, he was only two over par with a ball out of bounds on the 11th of the morning round.

McColl was only slightly less proficient in winning over Lineham, being four over for the distance.

Hughie Off and Running Early

Morrison never trailed in his match. He took the lead on the first hole with a par five to Court's six, saw Court square matters on the second, and then won three successive holes on four, five and six with birdies on four and five.

Court got one back on the 11th when Morrison went out of bounds, but Morrison regained his three-hole edge on the 14th as Court took a bogey four.

Court won the 15th when Morrison three-putted, but a birdie four on the 17th gave Morrison a three-hole margin at the end of the morning round.

Court then missed a grand chance to cut the deficit on 19, which perhaps was the crucial point of the match, when he three-putted, the hole being halved in sixes.

A birdie three on 21, where he chipped in from the edge of the green, put Morrison four up. He went five up on 23 when Court was over the green with his second, and took a six-hole edge on 27 when Court's tee shot was to the right of the green.

The 28th was halved in par fours, Morrison winning the 29th by blasting out of a trap to get a par four to Court's five, Court conceding on the 30th when his bold chip for a birdie four barely missed dropping in the cup.

Morrison was always holding the advantage in his victory, Court's putting failing him during the first 18, and Morrison's superior stamina and steadier play the deciding factor in the afternoon.

Long Putt Bill's Key Stroke

McColl had his troubles with Lineham also during the morning, with a long 35-foot putt on 16 being the key stroke, if one particular shot could be called that.

Facing loss of the hole and holding only a one-up advantage at the time, McColl dropped the long putt home, then won 17 and 18 to be three up at the luncheon interval.

Earlier McColl had taken a two-hole lead by the sixth, forged ahead by three holes at the 11th, only to have Linehame take the 13th with a par three, and the 15th with a birdie three to close ground.

Things remained the same during the first six holes of the afternoon — 3, the 24th being halved in birdie threes. Then Lineham faltered.

McColl won the three-point holes in par figures to go six up, took the 28th, also in par, when Lineham hooked his tee shot into the rough, and closed out the match by winning the 29th with a bogey five to Lineham's six.

It was a surprise sudden ending, Lineham losing the final five holes as he did, as previously he had played McColl on fairly even terms despite the atrocious wind conditions, and giving away much distance to his younger opponent.

But still McColl was always the superior of the two. He was only one over par in the afternoon and hitting the ball extremely well.

Old Favorites Win at Vancouver

There is no past book on the two Island finalists. They have never met previously in competition.

Morrison has two Vancouver City match play championships to his credit; however, this is offset by the fact that McColl, a former City champion, will be playing on his home course, Colwood.

Winner of the Island Open will receive the Times Trophy and the right to meet the winner of the Vancouver Daily Province Match Play championship in a British Columbia playoff.

And the way the Vancouver tournament has progressed, it will be an old Victoria favorite coming here for the provincial final.

In Sunday's play at Shaughnessy Club in Vancouver, Bill Mawhinney defeated Fred Wood in a battle of professionals, 4 and 3, over 18 scheduled holes, while Lyle Crawford edged Don Elford, 3 and 2.

Mawhinney, former B.C. amateur champion, was five under par in his triumph over Wood, being four under and four up at the turn.

Crawford is the reigning B.C. amateur titlist and the chap who lost to Bob Fleming at the 37th hole of the PNGA championships at Colwood last summer.

As presently arranged the B.C. final will be held at Victoria Golf Club May 15, the Vancouver champion also to be determined next Sunday.

FIRST TIME IN 53 YEARS

Bay Ruggers Lift Provincial Crown

The James Bay Athletic Association second-division rugby team has brought the Province Cup to Victoria for the first time in 53 years.

Coach Mort Graham's squad captured the B.C. championship trophy Saturday when they blanked Vancouver Ex-Tech, 6-0, at Vancouver.

Bays were full value for their victory in the rough match, scoring a penalty kick in the first half and adding an unconverted try in the second half, meanwhile keeping the Vancouver club bottled up.

Ray Ramsay booted the first-half penalty kick, 15 minutes after the start of the game, and JBAA made the 3-0 lead hold up until John Whan clinched it by going over the line at the 20 minute mark of the second half. Several other scoring chances were halted on the Vancouver goal-line.

PARIS—Percy Bassett, 131, Philadelphia, stopped Seraphin Ferrer, 136, France (10).

Nashua Closes Fast To Edge Summer Tan

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—In one of the greatest races New York ever has seen, the Belair stud's Nashua came from behind in the last strides to defeat the favored Summer Tan by a perspiring neck in the $111,700 Wood Memorial at Jamaica Saturday.

In two weeks the pair hook up again in the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby at Louisville, but there is little doubt that Nashua—the champion two-year old of 1954—still has the number of Summer Tan.

Summer Tan, owned by Mrs. John W. Galbreath, ruled the favorite of an excited throng of 41,721 due to a sensational workout here last Monday. But it was Nashua from William Woodward's Belair stud, who proved he had it when the chips were down in this great 31st running of the Wood Memorial.

Nashua, sleek bay son of the imported Nasrullah, was called the problem child, unpredictable in spite of his potential great promise but this was his fourth straight victory this season without defeat.

TERRIFIC DUEL

As forecast, this was a duel between two terrific three-year-olds. None of the other three horses had figured and that was the way it came out.

Nashua won by a scant neck in the 1⅛-mile classic. His time was 1.50 3-5.

Bronco Horvath, the top scorer in the Western Hockey League, fired the winner in the second overtime period Saturday night. He scored off a pass from Eddie Stankiewicz after 19 minutes and 39 seconds of overtime play.

The winning goal climaxed a drive that Edmonton started early in the second period after trailing 2-0 after the first 20 minutes of play.

Theft Charge Against City Man Opened

Trial of salesman John Proby on a theft charge has been adjourned to Thursday in city police court.

Proby is charged with theft of $80 from Ideal Insulation & Roofing Ltd., 503 Yates Street.

Mrs. Hilda M. Morgan, 957 Wollaston, testified Proby had written up a contract for work done on the roof of her home.

Total cost of the work was $120. She said she gave Proby $40 as a down payment and another $80 on completion of the job.

Jack Warnock, 1661 Hollywood Crescent, president of the insulation and roofing company, told court Proby failed to turn the money into the office.

Court was told accused owed the company nearly $2,800, having been given several advances from time to time.

Mr. Warnock said he had made application to an insurance company for return of some of the money taken by Proby, and had been refused.

Theft charge was laid about two or three days later, he told court.

Prosecutor is Alan Bigelow, and James Proudfoot defense counsel.

Chamber Silent on Probe Into Shipping

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce will present no brief to the Royal Commission currently studying coastal shipping matters.

This decision was reached by directors Friday after learning that two factions of equal size within the chamber were unalterably opposed to what type of representation the chamber should make.

Harbor and industrial groups of the chamber, which held a closed, joint meeting on the matter Thursday, recommended simply that: "the Victoria Chamber take no stand on the matter but refer it to the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

Point of controversy appears to be whether or not Canada should allow ships of other engage in its coastal trade without paying substantial fees for the privilege.

One group argues that because Canadian vessels must face competition from other Commonwealth countries, rates are kept down. The other contends this type of competition is putting Canadian ships out of business and is detrimental to the nation's shipyard industry, which must be maintained in the interests of defense.

Legion Poppy Being Used By Reds?

OTTAWA (CP) — Lieut.-Col. Gordon Churchill said Friday Canadian Communists are trying to use the poppy as a "symbol of peace."

The Progressive Conservative member for Winnipeg South Centre told the Commons estimates committee that some Communists early last November were wearing a poppy similar to the Remembrance Day poppy sold by the Canadian Legion.

"It's a scandalous use of the poppy," he said.

Col. Churchill was referring to a delegation from the Labor-Progressive Communist party which came to Ottawa about November 11 to talk with members of Parliament—or those who would talk with them.

He said he saw some of them wearing a poppy similar to the Legion poppy. When he asked about it, he said, he was told:

"People who wear this poppy are in favor of peace."

Col. G. L. Lalonde, acting deputy minister of veterans' affairs, said, "Some people have tried to muscle in" on the Legion sale of poppies. However, there was no way the Legion could prevent it because it had no copyright on the poppy, worn in remembrance of servicemen who died in Canada's wars.

MOTEL FOR PUSSIES

If It Says 'Meow' It's Welcome Here

By TONY DICKASON

Cats is cute.

So says cat connoisseur Mrs. J. O. E. Wood, Atkins Road. She has just started a business keeping cats as boarders.

Her 18-room cat home—completed Thursday—is so far just feline its way along.

Some people have suggested the establishment should be called a "kittle," a residence for cats; others maintain it might be known as a "cattle," but this was deemed confusing. Question of genus and size.

Mrs. Wood has her own idea. She terms the home for pussies the "Pussy Cats Motel." Hum-m-m!

Regardless of nomenclature, her acreage is a home away from home for the polish and purr tribe. For example, when Lady McFlutter takes off for Nepal, she can leave Sir Edmund II as a ward of Mrs. Wood.

$3-$4 A WEEK

Sir Edmund, the cat, gets a pleasant little well-ventilated cubicle, one of 18 so far designed to house the displaced cat tribe of this area.

Mrs. Wood hopes that persons departing on holidays, rather than leaving pussy with well-intentioned but uninterested friends, will unload Mehitabel with her. Cost of feeding the friend of the family, and keeping a roof over its fur head, will be between $3 to $4 a week, depending. Mrs. Wood did not say depending on what. Probably a temperamental differentiation, based on individual cat behavior.

UNIQUE VENTURE

Mrs. Wood's venture is apparently unique to Victoria. The city may have cat hoarders, but we found no cat boarders in the directory.

She likes cats and animals. In fact, the mistress of the household boards dogs, too. They are a happy appearing tribe with good woofy lungs.

Cats, as any cat owner knows, are individualists. Therefore two cats cannot be put in the same catery, or room, or what have you. Toms and females, says Mrs. Wood, are about the same to handle, neither being tougher or more gentle than its opposite gender.

She makes a point of knowing a cat's name before its admittance to the precinct. If called by name, "he or she thinks 'we must have met before' and is thereby disposed to be friendly."

COTTAGE CHEESE

Cat boarders get meat, a type of popular cat food, and cottage cheese—"we are great believers in cottage cheese."

Why do people like cats?

"I really don't know," says Mrs. Wood. "All I know is that I like them."

Many people who like dogs detest cats. This she explained thusly:

People can control dogs, who worship the master. But cats are independent, and so people who would like to have the hand over cats as they can have over dogs, find the cats' independency personally insulting.

There is an old saying which goes like this: Wherever you find men, you find dogs; wherever you find women, you find cats.

Everybody gets insulted, but both are liked.

'LADY GODIVA' STOPS TRAFFIC AT MIDNIGHT

PISA, Italy (AP)—Varo Vannucci was sentenced Friday to nine months in jail for chasing his wife naked down the street. Vannucci said he peeked through the window and saw his wife, Alfreda, 26, in the arms of an 18-year-old boy. In a fit of temper he tore off her clothes and chased her down the street. The parade caused a traffic jam, even though it was near midnight.

U.K. Health Plan 'Outrageously Expensive'

WINNIPEG (CP) — After seven years' experience of the national health service the British public and the profession are "seriously dissatisfied," Dr. N. D. McCreath, former consultant physician with the southeast metropolitan regional hospital board in London, England, said here.

"The practice of medicine has become a major political issue at the mercy of political expediency and subject to vote-catching changes," Dr. McCreath said in an address to the Winnipeg Medical Society.

"Far from being free the service is outrageously expensive and in addition to the tax the patient must now pay a charge on prescriptions and part of cost of dental care, glasses and surgical appliances."

Share Logging On Licenses, New Body Asks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Membership in the newly-formed B.C. Forest Industries Association rose to 70 recently when 52 independent logging and sawmill operators from the Victoria, Duncan and Langford areas joined.

Head of the association, formed six weeks ago, is C. B. Swanson.

The group will hold its first annual meeting in Vancouver in about two weeks. Its constitution is still in Victoria.

Elected to the directorate for the new areas are Wilfred Bomford, Duncan; George Seton, Langford, and Al Sheppard, Sooke.

At meetings this week on Vancouver Island, members endorsed a suggestion that all forest management licenses to date and those in the future should contain a clause requiring 65 per cent of all logging in a licensed area to be conducted by independent operators.

Square dancing, a carnival and an old-fashioned bean supper drew more than 800 parents and friends of Central Junior High School students to a PTA family night Friday. Proceeds totaled close to $400.

A sale of home cooking by PTA members was a popular feature. For the youngsters, who took pride in showing their parents around, there were movies and games.

Argentine Campaign To Curtail Smoking

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A few weeks ago President Juan D. Peron quit smoking after many years of chain-smoking black cigarettes. Friday the Argentine government announced that 22,000 doctors have been enlisted in an educational campaign against excessive use of tobacco. It is designed to convince youths they should never start the habit.

Symphony Support Sought by Chamber

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors have given approval to a civic affairs group recommendation that the chamber make representation to the four municipal councils of Greater Victoria, urging support "in some tangible form" to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

The civic affairs group pointed out the symphony here is in financial difficulty and receives no assistance from civic funds. In most other cities, symphonies receive direct financial aid, the group reported.

HOME GARDEN By HILDA BEASTALL

Greenhouse Plants Less Troublesome These Days

With the coming of sunnier days, the watering of the greenhouse plants becomes less of a problem.

All winter and early spring, the pots have to be watered individually with a can, each plant on its own requirements and as little as possible spilled on floor and benches. Now, however, it is a pleasure to take the hose (a 25-foot length will be found most useful in a small greenhouse with a flat flared nozzle) and with gentle pressure give water to all and sundry.

Some plants always seem to be thirsty and will require watering twice each day when the sun is shining. Most noticeable are those which have heavy root systems such as hydrangea, fuchsia, eucalyptus, the different species of dracaena, and in fact all those plants which we grow in pots but which normally have a tree-like habit. Palms in small pots will need twice-a-day watering, while those in larger pots may be satisfied with one.

Hilda

FILL EACH DAY

Another group of pot plants making masses of fine fibrous roots will need their pots filled to the brims each day. Now can be seen the need for that one inch of space from the surface of the soil to the rim of the pot. In the fibrous class will be found the Begonia semperflorens, coming into masses of bloom; pots of small summer flowering bulbs such as ixia, sparaxis and dwarf gladiolus; oleander and hibiscus.

Some plants will do better in partial shade in the greenhouse from now on. Among these are fern, philodendron (all varieties), maranta, aspidistra, and hairy leaved subjects such as gloxinia, gesnera and streptocarpus.

DRUG ADDICT HANGS SELF AT OAKALLA

VANCOUVER, B.C. (BUP) —A 28-yearo-ld drug addict hanged himself Saturday night while undergoing withdrawal treatment at the Oakalla prison farm in suburban Burnaby.

The prisoner, whose name was not released, used a strip of cloth torn from his shirt.

Dr. R. G. E. Richmond, the prison physician, said he checked the man a few minutes before he hanged himself and everything seemed to be in order.

The prisoner was given both artificial respiration and oxygen within a few minutes after the hanging, but neither revived him.

Tightening Up Of Rules for Parking Urged

Higher fines for repeat parking offenders will be sought by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber directors have decided to press city hall for implementation of a six-point program worked out by a chamber sub-committee for improving downtown traffic. In adition to fines on a sliding scale, the chamber proposes that enforcement of parking regulations be taken away from city police and given to civilians, and that money derived from meters and parking fines be placed in a separate account and spent to improve parking facilities.

Jack Housez, of the traffic sub-committee, told directors: "The further we got into this thing, the more serious we realized the situation had become. Downtown traffic doubled in the last five years. If we double again in the next five years, the situation will be one of chaos."

The committee's suggestion was that a chamber delegation take the various recommendations before the mayor and council.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, however, suggested this would be "a waste of time."

"Why not leave it to Ald. Smith (Ald. Donald Smith) and myself to take this up in committee," he said.

Ald. Smith, another chamber director, agreed that the matter could be dealth with by the city's public works committee first but suggested the chamber would be wise to proceed with its idea of having a delegation put forward the chamber's views. Directors decided on this course despite Ald. Dowell's submission that this was unnecessary.

"Just send us a copy of what you propose; there's no need for a delegation," Ald Dowell said. "Council is quite cognizant that something must be done (about traffic). They're just waiting for someone to engineer it."

City Jobless Total Down 259 in Week

Unemployment in Greater Victoria was down 259 persons last week, over the previous week, National Employment Service local managed C. A. Mudge said today.

Men accounted for 250 of the drop, women for only nine filled vacancies. It was the largest reduction for one period to date this spring.

Generally, male unemployment is 392 below the figure for the corresponding week in 1954, but there are 114 more women seeking placement.

Opening of construction trades is given as the reason for more men being employed, and the manager reports there are still sufficient men available to meet the demand for workers.

In the women's group, only domestic workers and a few skilled stenographers are required.

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP) —The second serious fire in three days hit Quesnel Sunday when flames caused $25,000 damage to a sawmill.

Prompt action by the volunteer fire brigade saved the main building of the Quesnel Sawmills plant. Cause of the blaze is not known.

Meanwhile, all six generating units of the B.C. Power Commission's diesel plant were back in operation Sunday after a $50,000 fire Friday.

The 6,000 persons of this north-central British Columbia town were without power for several hours after the fire which destroyed the plant roof and resulted in water damage to the generators.

Full power for industrial operation will be available today, officials said.

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, APRIL 25, 1955

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Something is wrong with the law enforcement agencies in these parts.

When a citizen cannot get redress, comfort, or co-operation from the law enforcement agencies after an out-and-out case of robbery, then Something Should be Done.

And this, I regret to report, is the situation as it stands as I write this (Sunday, April 24, 1955).

Shortly after midnight Saturday—I believe the exact time was 12.01 a.m.—I was robbed of one hour. Well, perhaps not exactly one hour, but at least 59 minutes. And that is close enough to one hour to put the robbery in the grand larceny bracket.

As soon as the robbery occurred, I acted as all good citizens should. I notified the city police, the Saanich police, the Esquimalt police, the Oak Bay police, the Royal Canadan Mounted Police, and a police dog named Gertie who lives down the street a bit.

But do you think I received any satisfaction from a single one of these alleged guardians of the law?

Of course not. The first five minions of the law I notified said, don't worry, you'll get your hour back sooner or later.

And the sixth (Gertie, the police dog), said: "Get a lawyer."

I don't want a lawyer. I want the hour (or 59 minutes, give or take a second or two) which was stolen from me.

And I want it right now.

It is all very well to tell me this stolen hour is not actually stolen, it will be returned to me next September. Come next September, I will find out whether or not this is true. Meanwhile, what proof have I the hour wasn't stolen, but only borrowed?

Did whoever borrowed it leave any security? Did he, they, or it promise to pay interest on the hour, if it was borrowed, and not stolen (as I am firmly convinced it was)?

When the hour is returned to me next September (if it is), will it have earned 8 per cent compound interest, compounded every hour on the hour? Will I get back four hours instead of one?

Of course not. If the hour is ever returned (and you can't convince me it will be returned) it no doubt will be an inflated hour, worth only about 30 minutes in actual value.

Worst of all, supposing I do not live until next September. What will happen to my hour (which has either been stolen or borrowed)?

If I am not around to collect, will it go to my estate? If so, will my estate have to pay succession duties on it? If so, how many seconds per minute?

I resent very deeply this theft of my hour, and am very cross with the police for not recovering it immediately.

Heggett, vice-president, MacDonald Brothers Aircraft Ltd., Winnipeg. Mr. Fox is president and managing director, Associated Airways and Associated Helicopters Ltd. (Times Photo.)

Lease of Military Planes Suggested

AITA Head Advocates Plan to Bolster Sagging Canadian Aircraft Transport

The federal government today was asked to investigate the possibility of having aircraft manufacturers build transport aircraft for military use, and made available to commercial operators on a lease basis.

The suggestion was made by T. P. Fox, president, Air Industries and Transport Association of Canada, in an address at the semi-annual AITA meeting underway at the Empress Hotel.

More than 150 executives from such corporations as Canadair Ltd., Avro, and De Havilland Aircraft are attending the two-day session.

"We have fallen far behind in aircraft transport in Canada, and we need heavy transport," said M. Fox.

EMERGENCY USE

Under a lease arrangement, crews and facilities would be available in time of military emergency.

He said also that Canada required a government aviation policy that "will allow us the maximum of economic freedom consistent with sound development."

He warned that in Canada's aircraft production today "there is a real danger of having idle resources and of having the industry's capital all represented by machines sitting on the tarmac."

Thus, "it seems reasonable to let our military product earn a peacetime return." This would pave the way, he said, to accelerated preparedness at low cost.

On aircraft regulations, he said the industry should be careful to guard against "over-regulation" which could throttle industry progress.

Cash Register Yields $100 To Burglars

Thieves Saturday night stole $100 from a cash register owned by the National Cash Register Company of Canada Ltd., 730 Johnson Street.

Police said the heavy-handed culprits carried a 225-pound cash register from a front office to the rear of the building, where they forced it open.

A plate also was forced off a centre office cash register but it withstood the attack.

In the same section, Bray's Transfer Ltd. and Temple's Auto Metal were entered and offices ransacked.

Police said they failed to find any trace of forced entry at any of the three establishments.

Police also said six parking meters were broken into over the week-end.

Nothing was reported missing after a break-in at an apartment at 1902 Fort Street. The ground-floor suite was entered by jimmying a window.

Engine Trouble Delays Return Nanaimo Ferry

May Be on Run Again by May 3

Machinery trouble will delay return of the CPR's Island-mainland ferry, Princess of Nanaimo, to her scheduled run following spring overhaul.

The big car-passenger ferry was to have returned to service next Friday, but CPR officials said today they were "hoping" she would be ready by May 3.

Difficulty is with the high speed rotor blades in her reduction-geared turbines.

TWO-MONTH TIE-UP

Last year, Princess of Nanaimo was laid up for two months, when defects showed up in the rotor blades during routine inspection.

New blades were machined in England, and were flown here and installed by CPR engineers.

The blades rotate at tremendous speed and extremely high temperatures are built up when the ship is under way.

CPR officials do not believe the trouble this year is as serious, and expect repairs can be handled here without bringing in special parts.

Polio Vaccine More Plentiful Middle of May

The main distributor of polio vaccine in the United States said today it expects to start commercial distribution to Canadian doctors for general use between May 15 and May 30—the same time American doctors will get their supplies.

Eli Lilly and Company said Canada has first priority with the firm for export.

"Prospects for a reasonable supply of the vaccine, probably from the middle of May onward, look very much brighter than they did last week," a company spokesman said.

He said the American government has not placed any restrictions on export of the precious vaccine.

By the end of July, he said, Eli expects to supply at least 25,000,000 doses to physicians.

This is in addition to filling its commitments to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Shipments to the foundation must be completed before commercial distribution starts.

The commercial availability of 25,000,000 doses will do much to ease the temporary shortage, an official said.

(It was reported Saturday a thin trickle of vaccine has arrived at Victoria wholesale outlets but not enough to be of much use.)

E. N. Beesley, president, asked physicians and the public for "sympathetic understanding of the industry's problems until an adequate supply is ready for use."

Meanwhile, the second phase of inoculation of Grade One and pre-Grade One children went ahead in city schools today. First shots were given last Monday.

This operation, of course is separate from commercial distribution.

BOY INJURED IN 40-FOOT CLIFF PLUNGE

A 12-year-old Mill May boy was in King's Daughters Hospital at Duncan today suffering from serious injuries received Sunday night when he toppled 40 feet from a cliff to the Island Highway near his home.

Attending doctor said David Keen received a fracture to the left forearm, small skull fracture and bad facial lacerations.

VANCOUVER 'SWIDDLER' TO TRY JUAN DE FUCA STRAIT MAY 8

R. B. Ordano, 54-year-old swimmer-paddler who hopes to conquer Juan de Fuca Strait, has set May 8 as the target for his attempt.

After a half-hour work-out in Elk Lake Sunday, he returned to Vancouver, and will practice nightly in English Bay. He plans to return here May 4.

Mr. Ordano propelled his twin-pontooned craft at an estimated five knots Sunday.

Whirlwind Included In Record-Breaking Victoria Weather

Thermometer Drops to 35.9 Degrees With Snow Reported in Lower Island Districts

By DON INGHAM

Snow, a tiny tornado, and a new cold-weather record smote this district Sunday and today to shatter further the faith native Victorians have in their weather.

The snow fell in the form of pellets Sunday and today. Gardeners were interrupted in their work Sunday afternoon, and reports of falling snow were received today from Langford and Shawnigan Lake.

City bus drivers taking over routes early this morning reported seeing a light sprinkling of snow, but not enough to interfere with traffic.

MALAHAT SNOW

Snow also fell on the Malahat, but there was not enough to constitute a hazard.

The "tornado," actually an out-sized whirlwind, on Sunday swept across the property of C. D. Thompson, 1255 Glyn Road, then traveled southeast across Wilkinson Road near the property of Donald McAlpine, 4241 Wilkinson, before vanishing.

"It sounded like a small boy running a stick along a picket fence," said Mr. Thompson.

Mrs. McAlpine heard the sound, and saw the spiral of dust and debris towering close to 100 feet in the air. Fairly large pieces of wood had been carried skyward, she said, adding that children definitely could have been endangered by the whirlwind.

SHORT-LIVED

Witnesses said it occurred at about 3.30 p.m., and lasted for only a few seconds.

William Mackie, weatherman, blamed extreme instability under roiling cumulo-nimbus clouds (the big, black, sullen-looking ones) for the whirlwind.

"We are still in cool, unstable air that gave us the freak weather Sunday," he said.

More is on the way, he said, forecasting some frost tonight, and sunshine with cloudy periods and a few showers Tuesday. Temperatures will range between 35 and 55 degrees.

The new record was an all-time low temperature for April 24 of 35.9 degrees, he said. Previous record was 36.3 degrees, set in 1907.

Week-End Accidents Hurt 5 Victorians

Five persons were injured in car accidents in Victoria and district over the week-end.

Most seriously injured was Chow Fan Foo, 49, 720 McKenzie Street, who received head injuries in an accident about 5.30 p.m. Sunday at Hillside and Higgins.

Royal Jubilee Hospital authorities describe his condition as "fairly good."

City police said a car driven by Foo struck a parked car and then crashed into a pole. Damage to the car was heavy.

PEDESTRIAN HURT

Pedestrian Stewart Mitchell, 21, 1232 Pembroke, was treated for facial abrasions and allowed to go home after being struck by a car at about 1.30 a.m. Sunday while crossing Douglas Street outside the Crystal Garden.

Driver of the car was identified as William R. Brown, 53 Lewis.

Two persons went to hospital following an accident at about 11.20 p.m. Saturday at Linden and May.

Mrs. Mary Bell, 23, 3206 Alder, was treated for shock.

KNEE INJURIES

Patrick John LaCroix, 17, 2632 Thompson, received shoulder and left knee injuries. He was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Drivers of the two cars involved were LaCroix and William Henry Bell, 3206 Alder.

Hugh Renfrew, 57, 501 Niagara, was in "good" condition today after suffering lacerations and shock when a Norrington bakery truck he was driving was in collision with a BCE bus Saturday at about 1.05 p.m. at Menzies and Superior.

Bus was driven by John W. McNeill, 3082 Balfour, police said.

TWO TREATED

Two women passengers on the bus were later attended at home by a doctor.

Fined $250 or 15 days in jail when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of impaired driving Sunday was Thephele Paul Danis, Victoria.

Unusual Case Before Court

A 28-year-old carnival worker, convicted twice of the murder of a 12-year-old girl, is in the death row at New Westminster Penitentiary awaiting completion of an appeal which started today in Victoria. The appeal will decide whether he'll hang May 3.

He is Lawrence Vincent, convicted twice at two separate trials of the shoe-lace strangling of Donna Lee Corbett at Quesnel, September 12, 1953.

Vincent's appeal against the murder conviction opened before the B.C. Court of Appeal before a full court composed of Justices C. H. O'Halloran, H. B. Robertson, Sidney Smith, H. I. Bird and H. W. Davy.

The accused was represented in court by counsel R. J. Hughes. D. F. McNeil represented the Crown.

UNUSUAL CASE

The case is unusual as it is Vincent's second appeal after undergoing three trials on a charge of murder arising out of the death of the girl whose body was found near a lonely logging road three miles from Quesnel.

Vincent, a shooting gallery concession operator, was first convicted of the slaying at Quesnel last June and sentenced to be hanged. He appealed the conviction to the Appeal Court and was granted a new trial on the ground the jury had been misdirected.

His second trial took place at New Westminster in January, but the jury failed to arrive at a verdict.

He was tried again in February before Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris in Vancouver and was convicted for a necond time and sentenced to be hanged.

REASONABLE DOUBT

In opening Vincent's case, Mr. Hughes told the court that his main ground for appeal was there was sufficient evidence given at the trial to raise a "reasonable doubt" as to the guilt of the accused.

He said he intended to show that the trial judge did not present the case of the defense adequately to the jury.

Mr. Hughes fingered through his notes nervously as he proceeded to review the case.

"Take your time. A man's life is at stake," said Mr. Justice O'Halloran.

Mr. Hughes related Crown evidence at the trial showed that Vincent asked the girl to fetch him some cigarettes at about 4.20 in the afternoon. The accused left his shooting concession shortly after the girl had gone on her errand. He was seen leaving the circus in a borrowed station wagon, he said.

Subsequently, an investigation revealed that hair found in the car was similar to that of the girl's, Mr. Hughes said.

NOT SEEN TOGETHER

The Crown further established, he said, the station wagon was at the spot where the girl's body was found. The tire tracks were identified and vegetation found on the car corresponded to the vegetation found near the body.

Mr. Hughes said that the Crown also claimed that the accused on the following morning was "shaking badly."

At no time, however, said Mr. Hughes, was the accused seen together with the Corbett girl.

THIS IS 10-PASSENGER Mallard aircraft which will be in service within a few days between Victoria and Vancouver. Service will be by Pacific Western Airlines. President, Russel Baker, is shown here with operations manager, H. Laidman.

New Air Service From Esquimalt To Mainland Starts Within Week

A fast Victoria-Vancouver seaplane service of two trips daily will start "within a week," vice-president and general manager, Pacific Western Airlines, Russel Baker, said here today.

The company has been planning the development for more than six months.

Flights will be between Sea Island and Esquimalt Harbor. Department of Transport rulings prohibit aircraft landing or taking off in the "restricted" aera stretching from Work Point and Shoal docks through to the upper harbor.

However, Mr. Baker indicated the company hopes to have the rulings eased so planes can arrive and take off closer to the centre of town.

Initially there will be three 10-passenger luxury Mallard amphibians on the run, and both planes and flight schedules will be increased as business warrants.

The service will include a stop at the Ganges wharf in flights, both coming and going.

A limousine service will be provided from Esquimalt Harbor to city centre.

Time involved from downtown Victoria to Sea Island will be less than an hour.

The Mallards, which cost $250,000 each, are new acquisitions to PWA's 32-aircraft fleet.

Thomas Will Tackle Strait Again May 12

Next attempt to cross Juan de Fuca Strait by distance swimmer Bert Thomas will be made in 17 days, May 12, at about 6 in the evening, the ex-frogman confirmed today.

But unlike his April 14 try, frustrated by rough water and a constricting stomach seizure, the second swim will only be attempted under ideal weather conditions.

"That weather has got to be perfect. I found that out the hard way," Thomas said.

After a few days in his home town of Tacoma last week in search of financial support to enable further training to be carried out here, Thomas is now trying to arrange a sponsor to provide boats and expense money.

A large Vancouver firm has signified interest in putting up tugs, a trainer and money, but details have not been discussed as yet.

SPONSOR PROPOSAL

The swimmer was scheduled to meet the Service Club Council of Greater Victoria tonight at 8 with a proposal of sponsorship.

The Toastmasters' Club has invited Thomas to address its meeting Wednesday at 6.15 p.m. in McEwen's Restaurant.

On Sunday afternoon he plans to make an exhibition swim similar to the one on April 3, in which thousands of Victorians saw the burly swimmer complete a 5.3-mile jaunt from Harling Point to the Inner Harbor.

He will not come into the Inner Harbor on the next one, but plans to land on the Victoria waterfront where crowds can watch him.

Thomas also plans a 10-mile swim from Race Rocks to Port Angeles before he makes his second stab at the Strait.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Matthew Webb swam the English Channel in 22 hours in 1879. Who was next to swim it? A.A.

A. Dealing with the first recorded crossing, Aug. 24-25, 1875, the Encyclopaedia Britannica says that Capt. Webb, having failed on an earlier attempt, dived from the Admiralty Pier at Dover and touched Calais sands "after swimming for 21 hours 45 minutes, and at the time this accomplishment created a great sensation in England." The next successful attempt is on record as having been made Sept. 6, 1911, when T. W. Burgess swam the channel in 22 hours 35 minutes.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Artistic Talent Now Boxed With Made-Easy Directions

By PENNY SAVER

All frustrated artists, come read what I've found. You don't have to be an expert or a whiz at painting and drawing to be admired as an artist. How? Well, with the magic art reproducer I found, you can make facial sketches or silhouettes with little more effort than you need to write. There's a machine that you look through that does most of the work for you. Just throw a light on the subject you're sketching, set up the magic machine, look through it, and the image of the subject will be cast onto the paper placed under the machine. If you use white paper, you can draw the face, but if you use the black paper and white pencil supplied, you can outline silhouettes, cut them out and frame them, and be the envy of friends.

They'll marvel at the exact likenesses. As I said, you don't have to be an accomplished artist. The machine, pencil with black papers and instruction book costs only $2.75. Please your friends and amaze all who see you work. This would also make a fine gift for the young or adults. It's simple to work, yet the results are very professional looking.

While I was taking notes on the magic art reproducer, the salesman offered me his pen and said, "Here try this one." I did, and was amazed to discover that it was a waterproof drawing ink ballpoint pen. It has a screw on top, so that it looks like a very expensive pen. The gold top is the shape of a well-known make. This pen is especially good for artists I was told. It is filled with black India ink, and was made for easy sketching and drawing. No more sharpening pencils for your artist friends now. How much? It's just $1.50, and refills are 50 cents.

How many people have thought that at one time or another they'd like to draw flowers and birds. Nearly everyone has tried it. Though my efforts weren't too successful, I'm going to try again, 'cause now I've found a book that shows how to paint birds and flowers. This particular book has been in demand for some time, and finally one Victoria store has stocked a supply. It's illustrated, and there are "blow by blow" descriptive pictures showing the methods and means of painting the pictures.

For $1.10, you can try your hand at the art. The many and colorful full-page paintings of birds and flowers are so inspiring that even before you start to paint, you have confidence that you'll succeed . . . whether it's painting a rose with a touch of dew on the petals, or a cocky sparrow on a limb. There are four or five step-by-step pictures to help you along the way, and I know there are a lot of people in Victoria testing their artistic ability, 'cause the books are selling very quickly.

WHY GROW OLD?

Research Reveals a Big Breakfast Is Important

How about this? Rats now are teaching us what to eat for breakfast, and I don't mean the rat (myself) who will not let you have your egg fried or allow you heavy cream on your cereal if you are overweight.

I am really writing about a very interesting experiment which was conducted recently at the Dwight Morrow High School in Englewood, N.J. This was sponsored by Mrs. Beatrice McKinley and her class in nutrition. The idea came from Dr. Julie Weber Gordon, of the New Jersey State department of education.

Three white rats had the leads in this little drama which highlighted in a way the students could actually observe, the importance of good nutrition. Two of the rats were given a diet of pulverized doughnuts and coffee while the third was fed a diet consisting of orange juice, wheat and dried milk.

The two rats who ate doughnuts and drank coffee died, while the third thrived. That should make a lot of you rush off in the morning with a skimpy breakfast quake in your boots.

Over and over again experiments with animals and humans tell us the story of what correct eating can mean in health and energy, in prolonging the youthful portion of life and appearance.

Whole grain products, orange juice and eggs, the breakfast foods, are an essential part of good nutrition. Of course, if you get adequate amounts of these during the day at other meals that is fine. But you are much more likely to drink your milk at other times.

Surveys also have shown that there is a big mid-morning slump in energy when you go to work, or start your day's activities, without an adequate breakfast.

If you gain weight easily, or overweight is a problem, you can take your egg poached or boiled rather than fried, and add skim milk rather than cream to your cereal. Those, with orange juice, will supply you with a low caloric meal and an impressive part of the day's essential foods.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Vitamin Defense," send a stamped, self-addressed envelop with your request for leaflet No. 37 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Picking children's clothes, keep these points in mind: Colorfast fabrics, preshrunk, stoutly made. They should fit easily, be simple and comfortable.

Give Bored Husband Taste Of Managing House Alone

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PhD

A person often changes his tune when he gets a taste of what it means to have the responsibility of a home on his shoulders. A woman writes:

Hurlock

(Q.) "My husband is always telling me to leave, after 20 years of marriage and three children, 16, 17 and 18 years of age. He says he would manage beautifully without me in the house and that's the only way he will be happy. This just started about a year ago. Before that, we got along wonderfully. Now he goes out by himself and, when he's at home, he just sleeps or sits around, seldom saying a word. I just don't know what to do or where to turn. What would you advise me to do?"

(A.) Go away for a visit to friends or relatives for several weeks and let your husband run the home. He may discover that he could not get along as well alone as he thinks he could.

While your children could doubtless run the home in your absence, urge them not to do any more than they now do. If they are in school or have jobs, it is not fair to expect them to sacrifice their own work or interests to run the home for their father.

Be sure, however, to let your husband know that this is just a visit and that you have no thought of deserting him. That is why you should not stay away from home for too long.

When you return, if things are no better, ask him if he wants to legal separation. Tell him you will go to the courts and apply for it, but that he will have to pay for the upkeep of your home and that you will take the children with you.

A man simply cannot tell his wife to get out of his home and his life as your husband is trying to do. He may have fallen in love with another woman and wants his freedom so he can marry her. If you give him his freedom, do so at your own price.

TODAY'S RECIPE

ORANGE BREAD

Two and a half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1¼ teaspoons baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon orange rind, ½ cup orange juice, ¼ cups white (distilled) vinegar.

Sift together flour, soda and salt. Cream shortening, blend in sugar, add egg and beat until fluffy. Add grated orange rind. Add flour mixture alternately with orange juice and vinegar, beating well after each addition. Turn into greased 8¾x4½x2½-inch loaf pan and bake 1 hour or until done at 350° F. (moderate oven). Remove from pan and cool several hours or overnight before slicing. Makes 1 loaf. Cut into desired shapes with cookie cutter. Spread with butter or cream cheese and decorate with sliced fruit.

Takes Job for Two Weeks, Stays for Over 40 Years

WATERLOO, Que. (CP) — Mrs. Nellie Irwin has watched the box social give way to the cocktial party in her 40 years as a social correspondent for the Sherbrooke Daily Record.

The 81-year-old woman has recorded the parties, weddings, christenings and club activities of this town ever since she agreed to take on the job "for a couple of weeks."

Mrs. Irwin remembers her indifference when she was asked to report the social activities of her community. She said only she would try her hand at it but it became her life work.

Her philosophy has been "never write anything except fact and always avoid items that might be misinterpreted."

Mrs. Irwin, born and raised a short distance from Waterloo, taught school for three years before she was married. Her only son, Ashton, died three years ago.

Ottawa May Back 'Witness' Appeal

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government may intervene in support of a Jehovah Witness in his bid for court damages against three Quebec provincial police officers who broke up a gathering in his Chapeau, Que., home, it was learned Friday.

The appeal of Esymier Chaput, self-described as Jehovah Witness evangelist, will go before the Supreme Court of Canada in about 10 days. Justice Minister Garson has already announced the federal government will intervene. Federal lawyers are preparing federal argument, which, it is understood, will support Mr. Chaput's case in some ways.

He seeks $5,005.15 damages for alleged violation of religious freedom, his rights as a citizen and seizure of a Bible and other articles by the officers when they entered his home in September, 1949, and broke up a Jehovah Witness meeting.

The officers said in evidence that Mr. Chaput had pamphlets containing "seditious libel" and was "creating animosity and hate between different classes of society."

Quebec courts have thrown out Mr. Chaput's claims on the grounds that under the Quebec Provincial Police Force Act, the three officers were acting legally on orders from superior officers and that they acted in good faith, in a peaceful manner and without malice. The courts held further that the legislation provides the officers with immunity from prosecution when they act in good faith.

The federal government, it is understood, will hold that the police officer does not draw his power to act against another person from provincial legislation but from the Criminal Code, a federal law, and that the provincial legislation deals only with police administration.

Opposing the federal view and siding with the Quebec court decisions will be counsel for the Quebec government. In argument already filed with the Supreme Court, the provincial government maintains the provinces have jurisdiction equal to that of the federal parliament in maintaining law and order within provincial boundaries.

The three officers involved are Elmond Romain, Linden Young and Roger Chartrand, all on duty in the Chapeau area

200 Indians of B.C., U.S. in May 24 Show

The throbbing beat of muted tom-toms will echo over the waters of Esquimalt harbor next month as the unique-to-Canada Vancouver Island Indian Festival gets underway.

The colorful two days of competitions, fun and frolic May 22-23, is sponsored by Island Indians and will be held in Maple Bank Park off Admiral's Road on the Songhee reserve.

More than 200 native sons from throughout B.C. and from U.S. points will take part.

Popularity of the entertaining show was demonstrated by numbers of people who attended last year. More than 8,000 saw the affair.

"This year it will be bigger and better than ever," said festival president Percy Ross.

One of the highlights of the festival will be war canoe races. There are 14 canoes to participate, each with 11 paddlers.

Lieutenant Governor Clarence Wallace has donated a large silver cup to be presented the winning team on the final day. The trophy is to be a perpetual one for annual competition.

Another entertaining feature will be ceremonial dances, in which masked participants relive the Indian legends of the coast.

In addition, there will be such events as log birling, tug-of-war, hurdles, field sports, square dances on the green and a host of other features.

Last year the festival included an Indian marriage. This year the happy couple will be back with a little papoose, born April 12. An Indian baptism will take place on the grounds this year.

Of course, an Indian queen will be crowned at the park.

Luscious food will include barbecued salmon, crabs, clam chowder and other goodies. Admission will be 50 cents, with children under 10 years of age free.

Mr. Ross said consideration is being given to entering an all-Indian float in Victoria's May 24 parade celebrations.

Roman Catholic Mass Will Be Abbreviated

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican's sacred congregation of rites has decreed a slight abbreviation of the Roman Catholic mass, effective Jan. 1. The congregation also shortened the breviary which priests must recite daily. The changes, published Saturday, conform with other measures taken by Pope Pius XII to reduce church ceremonials and give priests more time for parish duties.

Drama Festival Attracts Capacity Crowd

'Poor Maddalena' Named Best Play

One of the most successful adult drama festivals of recent years concluded Saturday with the presentation of three top-ranking plays and several awards to successful competitors.

A capacity audience in Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium saw Intimate Stage's production of "Poor Maddalena," a fantasy; and two comedies, "Nicodemus," by St. Andrew's Cathedral Drama Club and "The Bust of Margo Jones," written by local playwright Avis Walton and produced by the Victoria Theatre Guild Studio Group.

Opening remarks were made by Education Minister Ray Williston and a brief address also was given by Sir Robert Holland, honorary chairman of the Southern Vancouver Island Drama Festival committee. Thanks to all those who assisted in the successful organization of the festival were expressed by Miss Christine F. M. MacNab, chairman.

BEST PLAY

Mrs. Yvonne Firkins of Vancouver, adjudicator of the five-day festival, announced her choice of best play as "Poor Maddalena." Doris Sheridan and Allan Farrell, who played the leads in it were named best actress and actor.

Awards for direction went to Flora Nicholson and Lawrence Westendale, for the plays, "Nicodemus" and "Possession," respectively.

Most artistic production in the festival was named as "Dust Into Gold," and this award went to Times drama critic, Audrey St.Denys Johnson who produced the play for the Victoria Theatre Guild.

Guild member, Avis Walton, took the award for best original play with her well written "Bust of Margo Jones." Special awards to best supporting players were made to Doris Steward for her part of Martha Robinson in St. Luke's Players' "Possession," and to Vaughan Barker for his performance as Joe Higgins in "Change for Ten Dollars," a presentation of the Columbine Club.

Singled out by Mrs. Firkins for honorable mention, were Al Collins, Lee MacDonald, John Rashleigh, Ailsa Rothery, Dorothea House, Joan Key and Susan Gibson.

FISH GETS EVEN

TOKYO (Reuters)—Fusataro Goto, 47, was killed by a 300-pound fish—after he had landed the fish in his boat. Goto was found dead in his boat, a large lump on his forehead. Beside him lay the fish with a six-foot harpoon in its side. Police decided the fish, while thrashing about in the boat, hit Goto with the harpoon.

THE WINNER—Gilbert Roland finishes first in the Grand Prix de Italia and is hailed as the champion sports car driver of Europe in this scene from "The Racers," a new Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope picture in De Luxe color now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Roland co-stars with Kirk Douglas, Bella Darvi, Cesar Romero, Lee J. Cobb and Katy Jurado.

(BB Plus) "THE RACERS" (Capitol) — Dyed-in-the-wool auto racing fans should enjoy this 20th Century color film to the hilt. For it is doubtful if more authentic and exiciting "drive-it-yourself" scenes have ever been recorded.

Most of "The Racers" was filmed on the Continent, where road racing is big business. Drivers from all over the world wheel their gay-colored, high-powered cars over the hair-pin bends in fair weather and foul in grim jousts with death for fame, money and because they would rather drive fast cars than do anything else in the world.

★ ★ ★

Such a man is Kirk Douglas. His whole object in life is to become the No. 1 driver in the world. He finally attains this goal but while doing so loses the respect of his fellow drivers because of his selfish ruthlessness. Even Bella Darvi, a ballerina who lives with him, must play second fiddle to the metal monsters.

This is a well-acted piece but the film misses over-all excellence because it is too fast-paced and too flat. Unfortunately, neither was necessary.

★ ★ ★

"THE RACERS" has a fine cast, numbering among its principals such respected actors as Lee J. Cobb, Gilbert Roland, Cesar Romero and Katy Durando. But they are rarely used. It is almost as though the director hasn't had the time to place them in the sparse plot of this free-wheeling auto-go-round.

★ ★ ★

ALL THIS RESULTS in a flat, unrounded feeling, a lack of depth that deflates the plot enough so that one really does not care in the end how it works out.

One also regrets the speed of the whole that makes it impossible for the cameras to linger awhile on the natural beauties of Europe that continually disappear in the mists of the roaring exhausts.

Nonetheless, if you are addicted to watching auto racing you should find "The Racers" to your liking.

But if you care about other things as well, chances are you will be disappointed.

TOOK DRUGS, DIDN'T EAT

Lugosi Describes How He Became Addict

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actor Bela Lugiso, haggard and nervous from his battle to break a 20-year narcotic habit, today awaited transfer to the state hospital at Norfolk, where he will be committed for at least three months.

The 72-year-old Hungarian-born actor, who became famous for his portrayal of "Dracula" and other horror film roles, was committed here by Superior Judge Wallace L. Ware at his own request.

"I started using morphine under a doctor's care," he said. "I knew after a time it was getting out of control.

"Seventeen years ago, on a trip to England, I heard of a new drug, less harmful than morphine. It was called methadon. I smuggled a big box of it back home. I guess I brought a pound," Lugosi said.

"Ever since I've used that, or demerol. I just took the drugs. I didn't eat, I got sicker and sicker."

Judge Ware praised the actor for voluntarily turning himself over for treatment.

Lugosi answered, "God bless you. I appreciate the fine treatment that I've gotten in this institution."

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

When today's hand was played, South managed to make a hash of it. He claimed that he was very unlucky, but the right line of play should have been quite clear.

When West led the six of clubs, declarer played low from the dummy. East won with the ace of clubs and returned a trump.

Declarer won the trump in dummy with the queen, took the ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond with the five of hearts, led the nine of hearts to the ace, and ruffed his last diamond with dummy's last trump.

Now South had to get back to his own hand to draw the last trump. He tried to cash the king of clubs, planning to ruff the next club, but East ruffed immediately. The defenders later got two spade tricks and South was left looking for excuses.

The play of the first trick made it clear that West had the queen of clubs, and South needed nothing else to assure his contract. When East returned a trump at the second trick, declarer should have drawn three rounds of trumps and should then have led the jack of clubs from his hand.

West would have to cover with the queen of clubs and dummy would take the king. The nine of clubs would then be led and passed around to West. This would establish dummy's eight of clubs as a trick.

Hence declarer would discard one spade on the nine of clubs and another on the eight of clubs, losing only one of those tricks. He would eventually ruff one diamond and lose the other. Altogether, he would lose two clubs and one diamond, making his contract.

ATOMIC BLAST ON C-4 WEDNESDAY MORNING AT 8

ATOMIC BLAST—Just a reminder. If you are anxious to witness an atomic blast you had better stand by your set Wednesday morning at 8, tuned to Channel 4.

The test takes place approximately 20 minutes after the hour. Dave Garroway will be at Yucca Flat, Nev., to deliver the commentary. An entire village, complete with homes, factories, shelters and so on will be the test target. The test was originally set for Tuesday but was postponed because of weather.

DOWN BUT NOT OUT—In spite of inroads made by television, radio broadcasting is not ready "to die away," A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, told the Commons broadcasting committee, Ottawa, recently.

There is, he pointed out, still a great deal of interest in radio during the daytime hours. Even in the evening radio was still popular for "secondary audiences."

Mr. Dunton told R. R. Knight (CCF, Saskatoon) that he has not noted, so far, a reaction away from television and back to radio. However, some musical and talks programs might be done in a better way, and more cheaply, on radio than on TV, he acknowledged. Meanwhile, he added, there was a "terrific flood of interest in television."

GREY CUP FINALS?—The CBC has offered hopes to eastern Canada television viewers of live television coverage of the Grey Cup football final in Vancouver Nov. 26.

As the planned Canadian micro-wave link from Toronto to Vancouver will not be completed by then the CBC said it has placed a bid for use of cross-country TV network facilities in the U.S. The American networks, however, are not willing to commit themselves so far in advance, but the CBC promises to try "all possible means" to finalize arrangements.

HOT WATER—A story carried by a national American magazine recently has songstress Gisele MacKenzie in hot water with her old home town, Winnipeg.

Gisele MacKenzie

The magazine quotes her as saying, in part: "In New York, a cocktail before dinner is a gracious habit—in Winnipeg it's wicked. If anybody in Winnipeg takes a drink before going to bed, they're an alcoholic."

The ensuing furore created by irate Winnipeggers caused Miss MacKenzie hurriedly to recant. "It isn't true," she told a 'Peg newspaper via long distance telephone from New York. "I didn't mean it that way, it was only part of what I said. It was out of context."

In another year she will apply for her U.S. papers.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) — A.M. finds you secretly fussing over some silly condition. Stop it. Later, getting conditions at home on more practical levels relieves tension, opens way for new accord.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Letting extravagant friend early start you on unnecessary expense would lessen your security, assets. Make point to keep economical. Later you can study reports, statements and come to sensible procedure for future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Early day finds you lambasting official unless you keep mum over odd condition. P.M. is unusually good for ferreting out material mistakes, discrepancies and replacing with common horse-sense system.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Now you have right slant on motive under which friend of real character has been operating and which would be right modus operandi for you to use. Keep your plans quiet or greedy person may filch your idea.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Expensive aims are not advisable at this time for unexpected expenses require you keep reserve intact for the moment. P.M. higher-up gives you pat on back that has material advancement connected with it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You may be caught in middle, for friction between two individuals can draw in whoever is about. Better use your fast running shoes and keep out of this melee. P.M. fine for making new friendships that appeal to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Get away from tedious chores, look into ways suggested by your newspaper for expanding present horizons. P.M. brings support from higher-up that you have long desired. Accept in big spirit in which it is bestowed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Schedule your hours during A.M. so you can do your job well and also get off to some new, interesting attraction. P.M. excellent for coming to working agreement with all colleagues. Be mutually helpful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Charm others into seeing things your way. Then you won't have to try to impress with material assets. P.M. work hard at mountain of duties awaiting your personal attention and you get further, big backing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Try to get away from home early to avoid tiff that could occur there to everyone's discomfort. Make sure you use afternoon, evening to advantage by delighting those you admire, love, respect. Be modern.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Take all possible A.M. time away from the irksome and attend conversations with companies for future well-being. P.M. see if you can't impress those at home more deeply with your concern for them. Be considerate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Have you gotten yourself in as good shape as possible without depleting your assets? This A.M. fine for all such. P.M. then brings agreement with progressive partner for increasing your understanding. Be exact in statements.

The later years are excellent for making a success in worldy aspect of this information that has been inculcated in your offspring's consciousness during early years.

"TREAD SAFELY"
Know the Answers About Goodyear Retreading
QUESTION—How do I know my tires will be completely checked before retreading?
ANSWER—A GOODYEAR retread tag is attached to your tire, and all these points are checked: Fabric, sidewalls, tread, nails, cuts, holes, body breaks, beads. Then your tire is marked "Accepted" or "Rejected"! We never retread a tire that isn't worth retreading!

Indian-White School Open At Alert Bay

ALERT BAY (CP) — The largest school in B.C. to be attended by both Indians and Whites was opened here by Education Minister Ray Williston who said, "success in this school will mean the turning point in B.C. and across Canada."

The $186,000 school will be attended by 100 Indian children and 80 white children.

"Brotherhood is on the level of the children," said Mr. Williston. "The children don't set up barriers. The barriers are handed down and are not natural."

Chief William Scow, speaking on behalf of the Indian population said, "this is of great benefit to the whole of B.C. This is a school where the two races will live and learn together."

The Department of Indian Affairs and the Education Department are co-operating in providing instruction at the school.

Trustee Announces Objectives Of Sooke Area School Board

LANGFORD — Addition of four new classrooms to Belmont Junior-Senior High School, four classrooms at Langford Elementary School, and rectification of the school situation in the Esquimalt Lagoon area are hoped for by trustees of Sooke School District 62.

This was announced Friday night by John S. Williams, chairman of the board of trustees, in opening the school's eighth annual bazaar and frolic in the new auditorium.

Receipts totalled $680 and approximately $600 is expected to be cleared after expenses. Part of this sum will be used for the yearly commitment for work on grounds. The front of the school is ready for seeding, and the second section at the rear of the school is nearly ready.

Samples of a variety of trees and shrubs with which it is intended to decorate the school grounds were on display at the bazaar. Visitors were invited to donate similar plants, which will bear the donor's name.

W. H. Parker, president of the parent-staff council, made an appeal to parents to join in a work party on the school grounds April 30, starting at 9 a.m.

Arranged by the student council, teaching staff and parent group, the evening was declared a success. Taking place of the usual school play was a variety program staged by the students. Boys and girls of the senior high school were seen in a tumbling display, directed by D. Leash, and choral singing was heard from two groups, with Miss S. Babb and Mrs. P. Dulmage leading senior and junior groups respectively.

A demonstration of ballet dancing as conducted at a dancing class was arranged by Miss Gwen Gillies, with four students from the school. Joan Carlow led the baton twirling team.

The boys' school band under direction of D. Curley provided accompaniment and played selections.

There was keen competition in the school's home-made cake contest, in which some of the boys participated. A teacher, F. Gower, was the only male winner.

Prizes for cakes for girls under 15 went to Janice Bishop, Lucille Hull, Ann Stubbs and Judy Fraser.

Joyce Beaudin, Faith Bligh, Diane Hull and Patricia Byce were winners in the 15 and over group.

Music for the Teen Town frolic was provided in the old auditorium and drew a large crowd. Refreshments for parents were served in the domestic science room by Colwood members.

Bingo was played in the main auditorium, where booths were set up for the selling of home-made candy from the Happy Valley district, sewing by Langford district, aprons and novelties made by girls of the school, woodwork and toys by the boys, and home cooking, including contest cakes, by Metchosin district.

Members assisted at the plant superfluities and book stalls. Principal A. H. Stephenson and teachers acted as supervisory hosts.

Bennett Lists Goals in Ottawa Talks

$14,000 Cayuga Theft

Biggest Haul Ever Made Here

The Tribal class destroyer HMCS Cayuga, senior ship in the RCN's Second Canadian Escort Squadron, is being detained in port at Esquimalt today as RCMP investigate the theft of $14,522 from the ship's strongbox.

Cayuga was to have sailed at 10 a.m., to lead the three other ships of the squadron in escorting HMCS Ontario on a training cruise for officer cadets.

The theft was reported to RCMP by the ship's captain, Cmdr. G. H. Davidson, shortly after 7 p.m. Saturday.

The money disappeared from a strongbox in the cabin of Lieut. A. K. Cameron, supply officer.

NOT FORCED

The box, fastened with a key, had not been forced, according to reports. It appeared to have been opened with a key, or else the lock was picked.

Lieut. Cameron went ashore at 4 p.m. Friday, to spend overnight leave at his home, 1226 Hampshire. He returned to the ship Saturday evening and went to his cabin to get a uniform to be dry cleaned.

He noticed the door to the strongbox, similar in appearance to a safe, was ajar. Opening the door, he found the cash was gone.

Ship's papers, also kept in the strongbox, had not been touched.

PUBLIC FUNDS

Lieut. Cameron reported to his commanding officer, and Cmdr. Davidson called RCMP. As the money is public funds, provided against the purchase of supplies in foreign ports, the responsibility for the investigation lies with the RCMP, although naval officials are also investigating.

Those in the ship were ordered to remain aboard, and those on shore leave notified to return immediately. Personnel of Cayuga numbers about 300 officers and men.

Naval spokesen said the amount of money was "about normal" for a ship ready to leave on a two week voyage.

Cayuga was to have accompanied Ontario and the other ships in the escort squadron as far as San Diego. The cruiser will proceed to Europe.

The navy said there were no definite suspects, but apparently it was an "inside job."

RCMP said they were working on the theory that the locks on the strongbox were picked.

Chou Rejects Terms For Formosa Parley

Red Chinese May Use Imprisoend Fliers As Bargaining Point; Chiang Forces Upset

BANDUNG, Indonesia (UP)—Communist China today rejected the American terms for a conference on the Formosan crisis and there were strong suggestions Peiping might use 11 imprisoned American fliers as a bargaining point.

Peiping radio announced the rejection and said the U.S. state department's answer to Premier Chou En-lai's bid to sit down and discuss Formosa "put forward a series of unreasonable prerequisites for such negotiations."

It listed these as the participation of Chiang Kai-shek, the call for an immediate cease-fire in the Formosa Strait, the immediate release of "all American spies" and the acceptance of a United Nations Security Council invitation to discuss the New Zealand proposal on the Formosan issue.

But at the same time, Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan said he thought Red China might release the 11 imprisoned American fliers if Peiping were convinced of the United States' sincerity to negotiate the Formosa crisis.

MAKES PROGRESS

Observers said Chou's reported willingness to discuss the release of the Americans was a strong indication the Communists hoped to use their imprisonment to win concessions on other points.

The flood of developments on the Formosan crisis made it more and more evident that the talks between the United States and China might not come off.

Nationalist officials on Taipei said flatly they would not sit down with the Chinese Communists on any terms. The United States said it would not talk unless the Nationalists were present. And Peiping rejected all American proposals.

TO SHOW WORLD

Ike Plans Atom-Power 'Peace Ship'

NEW YORK (UP)—President Eisenhower today announced plans for United States construction of an atomic-powered merchant ship which will cruise the world to demonstrate peacetime use of atomic energy.

The new ship, which will not require refueling "for scores of thousands of miles," will carry to countless foreign ports the exhibits of practical application of the new atomic science and medicine, agriculture and power production.

The president made his disclosure in a speech prepared for delivery to The Associated Press lunch.

Mr. Eisenhower said specifications for the vessel were being developed by the Atomic Energy Commission and the maritime administration. The chief executive will ask congress for special construction funds in the near future, accompanying his request with a description of the ship.

Red Dust Whirlwind Kills Four

HARTSELLE, Ala. (AP)—"A whirlwind with red dust," the third tornado to hit this community in 23 years, left four dead, up to 25 hurt, and damages estimated at $750,000 Sunday.

The dead included a three-year-old boy and his sister and a 60-year-old couple.

Homeless residents of this battered north Alabama farming section met soon after the storm to begin plans for rebuilding their shattered homesteads.

A Red Cross official said 20 to 25 persons were injured. Civil defense officials said 40 houses were destroyed, 30 more damaged and two churches blown away.

Damage to buildings alone was placed at near $750,000. When the loss of livestock, crops and utilities is totaled that figure may go many thousands of dollars higher.

A-Blast on Mock City Postponed One Day

High Winds Forced Delay in Triggering Of Major Explosion; Canadian's on Hand

By KEN METHERAL

SURVIVAL CITY, Nev. (CP)—High winds over the Nevada Desert today forced postponement until Wednesday the big atomic blast to be hurled at a simulated city.

The test may point the way to survival of thousands of Canadians.

That is the opinion of top officials of Canada's civil defense organization here as official observers of the open shot test which will also mark the first time Canadian servicemen have been subjected to an atomic explosion.

Six top civil defense chiefs, including Maj.-Gen. Frank Worthington of Ottawa, visited the test site Sunday and again today. They inspected a vast array of civilian and industrial targets that have been assembled on the Nevada desert to see how well they can withstand the effects of detonation expected to be equivalent to explosion of 40,000 tons of TNT.

Gen. Worthington and his party spent hours Sunday studying details of construction of civilian shelters, houses, power and gas lines and other installations set at distances varying from 4,700 feet to 15,000 feet from the blast centre.

"This test will provide the answers to many questions we must know," said Worthington as he made a thorough examination of a one-story frame house and a similar structure of precast concrete slabs—both of types occupied by Canadians from Halifax to Victoria.

The tri-service team, which will occupy the second closest manned trenches during the blast, rested today after an intensive three-day monitoring exercise over areas contamined in previous tests.

CROUCH IN TRENCHES

Those in the forward trenches will have to crouch head-down for several seconds after the blast.

"This is the type of job we've been trained to do," said Don Newbury of Regina and Alida, Sask. Spr. S. R. Adams of Montreal and RCAF Cpl. George Stuart of Comox, B.C., agreed. "There isn't any danger because we've been trained to avoid it," said Adams.

So keen are the Canadians that they put in the six hours, without stopping for lunch, in a final sweep over the rocky, cactus-covered terrain in a simulated radiation detection test.

WOULDN'T TAKE LUNCH

"The men just wouldn't take a lunch break," said Maj. R. E. MacDonald of Sydney Mines, N.S. "They wanted to keep on working."

And it was work. Cpl. D. W. Newbury, 25, of Alida, Sask., and Regina, and RCN PO J. H. Threlfall, 42, of Esquimalt, B.C., who formed one forward detection squad, worked without respite wearing respirators and heavy protective clothing. They ended the day leg-weary and soaked in perspiration.

Profit-Free Gift For PGE Extension In B.C. Proposals

* * * * * *

B.C. Proposals Summarized

In Ottawa today, on the eve of the preliminary Dominion-provincial fiscal conference, Premier Bennett disclosed B.C. policy on four major issues affecting the governments of Canada;

1. He wants Ottawa to share 50-50 with the provinces in a public investment program for highways, bridges and forest conservation (including a half share in B.C.'s $60,000,000 PGE extension.

2. He wants Ottawa to contribute 40 per cent of relief costs for employable people who cannot get Unemployment Insurance, with the province paying 40 and municipalities 20. (In Ottawa today, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons proposals for relief programs and special aid to unemployed would be discussed at Tuesday's conference. But, he added, he hoped the subject would not be treated as "a political football.")

3. He favors a secretariat of civil servants to make a continuing study of the Dominion-provincial problems to lay before a full-scale conference in the fall.

4. He says a new formula of income tax agreements should keep taxation uniform across Canada, but should be flexible to allow those provinces which so desire to impose their own income and corporation taxes.

* * * * * *

(From CP, BUP and Special Dispatches)

OTTAWA — British Columbia will propose a joint federal-provincial public investment policy at the conference of government heads opening Tuesday, B.C. Premier Bennett said today.

Besides this measure to stimulate employment, the premier told a press conference, his government will ask that the federal government share in the cost of taking care of able-bodied unemployed not receiving unemployment insurance.

He will propose a 40-40-20 split in costs among federal, provincial and municipal governments, and he said he hopes for positive action on it at this conference, called primarily to set an agenda for a later full-dress federal-provincial meeting.

"I think it can be done in two minutes," he said when a reporter asked if he thought such a decision could be reached in two days.

His government's joint investment policy, Mr. Bennett said, calls for a 50-50 federal-provincial division on the cost of such projects as highways, bridges and forest conservation.

In British Columbia's case, too, it would involve the federal government in a half share of the $60,000,000 cost of extending the province-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway southward and northeast to link Vancouver with the Peace River area.

'NOBODY WILL VOTE LIBERAL'

OTTAWA (BUP) — British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today that "Nobody, but nobody will vote Liberal in the next federal election."

Bennett was asked at a press conference to comment on the political situation in his province. He said "there's no Conservative party left and no Liberal party either."

"The CCF are the only opposition," he added.

He predicted the situation in British Columbia "will be reflected in the next federal voting."

He said he had no personal ambitions in the federal sphere.

B.C. Won't Cut Ottawa In on Profit

Under any such arrangement, he said, the province would expect to retain control of the road and any profits from its operation.

Administration of any other joint projects should be in provincial hands, he said.

Speaking of federal-provincial fiscal arrangements generally, he said there should be a new formula for the agreements under which the federal government now pays rental to nine provinces—all except Quebec—for the use of some provincial tax fields.

The formula should be designed to take care of:

1. The have-not provinces, "which confederation didn't deal too well with."

2. Those richer provinces who could get along by imposing their own income and corporation taxes but who are willing to share the fields with Ottawa.

3. Any province wishing to keep these tax fields for itself.

Asked if he would look for higher federal tax rental payments to British Columbia under a revisal of the agreements, Mr. Bennett declined to comment.

'We are here in a spirit of good will," he said.

'Can't Sweep Job Problem Under Rug'

Discussing his proposal for a 40-40-20 share in the care of employable unemployed, Mr. Bennett said his government made this proposal to Ottawa last year, with a view to looking after the 1954-55 winter unemployed. It had been turned down.

"We do think the federal government should get into this field," he said. "In British Columbia, the province bears 80 per cent of the cost and the municipalities the other 20. We find it expensive, even though we are the only province with less unemployment than last year."

"The governments of Canada," he added, "cannot close their eyes to the unemployment situation and to the need of progressive developments. They can't sweep this problem underneath the rug."

He said any federal sharing of this cost should be in addition to payments from the unemployment insurance fund, to which employers, employees and the federal government contribute. Also, it should have no effect on the federal payments made to provinces in return for tax rental.

Wants Ottawa to Pay Full Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — Saskatchewan wants the federal government to assume the full cost of caring for able-bodied jobless not covered by unemployment insurance, Premier Douglas said today.

The CCF premier, interviewed after his arrival for Tuesday's federal - provincial conference, also said he hopes for federal participation in a widespread public investment program with the provinces.

Mr. Douglas said he hopes the conference will decide to have these and other problems—including low farm income and marketing of farm products — turned over to a permanent secretariat for the drafting of concrete plans in time for a full-dress federal provincial conference later this year.

Mr. Douglas said his suggestion for federal assumption of responsibility for the employable unemployed would be in line with a federal proposal made to the 1945 federal-provincial conference.

Ruling Hits N.Y. Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Share prices declined on a broad front in early dealings in the stock market today following the week-end announcement boosting margin requirements.

Some issues were down as much as $3 a share, but a few soon managed a slight recovery.

The federal reserve board late Friday announced that investors must now put up 70 per cent in cash for any stock they buy. That compares with the previous 60 per cent.

ROCKET TUGBOATS WILL TOW IT

Russian Radio-Controlled Tank To Send Lunar Tunes From Moon

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said today the Soviet Union is considering a plan to explore the moon with a tank remotely controlled by radio. It predicted lunar trips by human beings would follow in a year or two.

A broadcast said the tank, carried to the moon by rocket ship, would be fitted with powerful television equipment to transmit pictures of the lunar landscape back to the earth.

"Designing of the apparatus required at both ends is quite a feasible engineering job," the broadcast declared. "Momeover, the use of a tank as the first explorer of the moon will greatly simplify construction of the rocket ship. A tank can bear much greater acceleration and fluctuations in temperature and pressure than a human being.

Furthermore, a space ship carrying a tank does not have to be protected against collisions with meteorites nor does a tank have to be brought back to earth."

The broadcast said the 240,000-mile trip would be made in two stages. First, the space ship would be taken several hundred miles into the sky by rocket tugboats. Its own rocket engine would then be turned on by remote radio control to put it into an orbit around the earth.

Rockets would next be sent up to refuel the space ship for the trip the rest of the way to the moon.

"After such a flight it would be possible to consider sending a space ship with men on board," the broadcast said.

The Soviet Union said last week it has formed a team of top scientists to devise a man-made satellite which would circle the earth. The announcement said the satellite would take photographs of cloud and ice formations to help weather forecasting.

Apparently 'Inside Job'; No Suspects

The Tribal class destroyer HMCS Cayuga, senior ship in the RCN's Second Canadian Escort Squadron, is being detained in port at Esquimalt today as RCMP investigate the theft of $14,522 from the ship's strongbox.

Cayuga was to have sailed at 10 a.m., to lead the three other ships of the squadron in escorting HMCS Ontario on a training cruise for officer cadets.

The theft was reported to RCMP by the ship's captain, Cmdr. G. H. Davidson, shortly after 7 p.m. Saturday.

The money disappeared from a strongbox in the cabin of Lieut. A. K. Cameron, supply officer.

NOT FORCED

The box, fastened with a key, had not been forced, according to reports. It appeared to have been opened with a key, or else the lock was picked.

Lieut. Cameron went ashore at 4 p.m. Friday, to spend overnight leave at his home, 1226 Hampshire. He returned to the ship Saturday evening and went to his cabin to get a uniform to be dry cleaned.

He noticed the door to the strongbox, similar in appearance to a safe, was ajar. Opening the door, he found the cash was gone.

Ship's papers, also kept in the strongbox, had not been touched.

PUBLIC FUNDS

Lieut. Cameron reported to his commanding officer, and Cmdr. Davidson called RCMP. As the money is public funds, provided against the purchase of supplies in foreign ports, the responsibility for the investigation lies with the RCMP, although naval officials are also investigating.

Those in the ship were ordered to remain aboard, and those on shore leave notified to return immediately. Personnel of Cayuga numbers about 300 officers and men.

Naval spokesen said the amount of money was "about normal" for a ship ready to leave on a two week voyage.

Cayuga was to have accompanied Ontario and the other ships in the escort squadron as far as San Diego. The cruiser will proceed to Europe.

The navy said there were no definite suspects, but apparently it was an "inside job."

RCMP said they were working on the theory that the locks on the strongbox were picked.

Chou Rejects Terms For Formosa Parley

Red Chinese May Use Imprisoned Fliers As Bargaining Point; Chiang Forces Upset

BANDUNG, Indonesia (UP)—Communist China today rejected the American terms for a conference on the Formosan crisis and there were strong suggestions Peiping might use 11 imprisoned American fliers as a bargaining point.

Peiping radio announced the rejection and said the U.S. state department's answer to Premier Chou En-lai's bid to sit down and discuss Formosa "put forward a series of unreasonable prerequisites for such negotiations."

It listed these as the participation of Chiang Kai-shek, the call for an immediate cease-fire in the Formosa Strait, the immediate release of "all American spies" and the acceptance of a United Nations Security Council invitation to discuss the New Zealand proposal on the Formosan issue.

But at the same time, Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan said he thought Red China might release the 11 imprisoned American fliers if Peiping were convinced of the United States' sincerity to negotiate the Formosa crisis.

MAKES PROGRESS

Observers said Chou's reported willingness to discuss the release of the Americans was a strong indication the Communists hoped to use their imprisonment to win concessions on other points.

The flood of developments on the Formosan crisis made it more and more evident that the talks between the United States and China might not come off.

Nationalist officials on Taipei said flatly they would not sit down with the Chinese Communists on any terms. The United States said it would not talk unless the Nationalists were present. And Peiping rejected all American proposals.

TO SHOW WORLD

Ike Plans Atom-Power 'Peace Ship'

NEW YORK (UP)—President Eisenhower today announced plans for United States construction of an atomic-powered merchant ship which will cruise the world to demonstrate peacetime use of atomic energy.

The new ship, which will not require refueling "for scores of thousands of miles," will carry to countless foreign ports the exhibits of practical application of the new atomic science and medicine, agriculture and power production.

The president made his disclosure in a speech prepared for delivery to The Associated Press lunch.

Mr. Eisenhower said specifications for the vessel were being developed by the Atomic Energy Commission and the maritime administration. The chief executive will ask congress for special construction funds in the near future, accompanying his request with a description of the ship.

B.C. PREPARES FOUR BIG ISSUES

Wants Profit-Free Gift for PGE, 40 Per Cent Relief Costs Paid

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

WHAT PREMIER BENNETT WANTS:

In Ottawa today, on the eve of the preliminary Dominion-provincial fiscal conference, Premier Bennett disclosed B.C. policy on four major issues affecting the governments of Canada:

1. He wants Ottawa to share 50-50 with the provinces in a public investment program for highways, bridges and forest conservation (including a half share in B.C.'s $60,000,000 PGE extension.

2. He wants Ottawa to contribute 40 per cent of relief costs for employable people who cannot get Unemployment Insurance, with the province paying 40 and municipalities 20. (In Ottawa today, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons proposals for relief programs and special aid to unemployed would be discussed at Tuesday's conference. But, he added, he hoped the subject would not be treated as "a political football.")

3. He favors a secretariat of civil servants to make a continuing study of the Dominion-provincial problems to lay before a full-scale conference in the fall.

4. He says a new formula of income tax agreements should keep taxation uniform across Canada, but should be flexible to allow those provinces which so desire to impose their own income and corporation taxes.

(From CP, BUP and Special Dispatches)

OTTAWA — British Columbia will propose a joint federal-provincial public investment policy at the conference of government heads opening Tuesday, B.C. Premier Bennett said today.

Besides this measure to stimulate employment, the premier told a press conference, his government will ask that the federal government share in the cost of taking care of able-bodied unemployed not receiving unemployment insurance.

He will propose a 40-40-20 split in costs among federal, provincial and municipal governments, and he said he hopes for positive action on it at this conference, called primarily to set an agenda for a later full-dress federal-provincial meeting.

"I think it can be done in two minutes," he said when a reporter asked if he thought such a decision could be reached in two days.

His government's joint investment policy, Mr. Bennett said, calls for a 50-50 federal-provincial division on the cost of such projects as highways, bridges and forest conservation.

In British Columbia's case, too, it would involve the federal government in a half share of the $60,000,000 cost of extending the province-owned Pacific

ROCKETS TO TOW IT

Red Radar-Guided Tank Going to Moon

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said today the Soviet Union is considering a plan to explore the moon with a tank remotely controlled by radio. It predicted lunar trips by human beings would follow in a year or two.

A broadcast said the tank, carried to the moon by rocket ship, would be fitted with powerful television equipment to transmit pictures of the lunar landscape back to the earth.

Furthermore, a space ship carrying a tank does not have to be protected against collisions with meteorites nor does a tank have to be brought back to earth."

Rockets would next be sent up to refuel the space ship for the trip the rest of the way to the moon.

"After such a flight it would be possible to consider sending a space ship with men on board," the broadcast said.

The Soviet Union said last week it has formed a team of top scientists to devise a man-made satellite which would circle the earth. The announcement said the satellite would take photographs of cloud and ice formations to help weather forecasting.
